FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

The Ryukyus Command Today BY MAJ. GEN. R. B. MCCLURE, USA Commanding

FIVE tense years of sustained effort have passed since the conclusion of what is generally regarded by military men as one of the greatest and most fearful battles in history.

Maj. Gen. McClure

Okinawa, the largest among the 140 islands of the Ryukyu chain and the hardest hit by the destructive force of the fierce conflict, shows the scars today in its defaced landscape and its wreck-littered shores and harbors.

Headquarters, Ryukyus Command, and Headquarters, Military Government are located on Okinawa. The Senior Army Officer has joint responsibility as Commanding General, Ryukyus Command and Military Governor, Ryukyu Islands in maintaining a key military establishment and in directing the Department of the Army's policy of political, social and economic rehabilitation.

The damage and destruction effected by the "last battle of World War II" are today major complicating factors in the accomplishment of the mission. However, vast material improvements are visible on all sides and the morale of occupation personnel and indigenous populace is high.

While implementing an occupation policy of over-all rehabilitation to pre-war standards, providing for a maximum of self-sufficiency, and leading the people to eventual self-government, it has been necessary to establish on Okinawa a U. S. base from which units and personnel of the army, air force, navy and coast guard could operate. During the past five years an extensive construction program has been carried on by the armed forces and civilian workers who constructed air bases, rehabilitated the harbor of Naha, constructed the harbor at White Beach, built roads throughout the Island, set up utility and communication facilities, constructed military and civilian living quarters, rebuilt native schools and other essential buildings, and accomplished many hundreds of related activities necessary to the reconstruction of the Islands and the building of a military base.

Deputy Commanding General Harry B. Sherman has the responsibility of directing and coordinating the training of the Ground Force units in the Command. The famous 29th Infantry was sent to Okinawa to provide the occupation with com-

Air Force generals given new assignments this week. General Nathan F. Twining, left, named Vice Chief of Staff and elevated from three to four-star rank; Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad (center) selected to succeed Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon (right) as Commander of U. S. Air Forces in Europe. General Cannon becomes Commanding General Tactical Air Force.

Income Tax Order

The Executive Order implementing provisions of the new income tax law providing special exemptions for military personnel in the yet unspecified combat zone is expected to reach the White House in about a week.

An inter-Service committee under Navy direction is completing its recommendations which will be submitted to the Department of Defense for transmittal to the Treasury Department, the overall coordinating agency. Then, the Order presumably will be studied by the Bureau of the Budget and the Department of Justice before it is sent to the President for signature.

The new income tax law stipulates that officers in combat shall receive a $200 monthly exemption, with total exemption for enlisted personnel in action against the enemy. However, it remains for the combat zone to be spelled out specifically in the Executive Order.

There was one report this week, not officially confirmed, that the combat zone would include only Korea and a 50-mile environ. The latter proviso would be primarily for men aboard Naval vessels operating off the Korean coast. However, a wider combat zone may be specified before the Order is published.

The special exemption for combat service is retroactive to the outbreak of hostilities, but it was reported this week that in the absence of the Executive Order deductions are still being made from pay of military personnel in Korea, without regard to the exemption.

Meantime, in view of the obvious complexities in administering the restrictive exemption, the feeling persisted that there will be a strong Congressional effort made later this year to extend the exemption to all Service personnel, without regard to chance of assignment. In recent issues, THE JOURNAL has pointed to ob-

To Select 7 Marine BG's

The second 1950 Marine Corps Selection Board convened on 12 Oct., this week, to name officers for promotion to the temporary grade of brigadier general. Seven colonels will be selected, the Marine Corps said. Last year's board selected only five officers for promotion to the one-star rank.

The promotion zone extends from Col. Frank D. Weir to Col. Lewis Burwell "Chesty" Puller. Selections may also be made from officers above the zone, as well as those below.

A total of 182 officers are eligible for consideration. All are unrestricted officers who have served a minimum of three years in grade as of 30 June 1950. Two are reserve colonels now on extended active duty.

The board consists of Lt. Gen. Leroy P. Hunt, president; Major Generals Ray A. Robinson and Robert H. Pepper; Brigadier Generals William O. Brice, Vernon E. Megee, John T. Selden, Harry B. Liver- sedge, William S. Fellers, and Randolph McC. Pate.

A similar board, which was convened last week to nominate officers for promotion to major general, is expected to report its selections next week.

Transfer to Regular Navy

Eight Naval Reserve Medical and Nurse Corps officers have been recommended for transfer to the Medical and Nurse Corps of the Regular Navy.

They are:

Lt. Robert Horatio Brown, MC, USNR.
Lt. Comdr. William Linas Conlon, MC, USNR.
Lt. Charles Archly Patterson, MC, USNR.
Lt. Marjorie Josephine Donnelly, NC, USNR.
Lt. Edna Irene Fetterman, NC, USNR.
Lt. (jg) Mary Veronica Finn, NC, USNR.
Lt. (jg) Ruth Elaine Kennedy, NC, USNR.
Lt. Delma Una Linville, NC, USNR.

To Renew Drive For Family Medical Care

A promise for prompt Congressional action to insure continuation and expansion of the dependent care program was voiced to THE JOURNAL this week by Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-SC), who with the full support of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) has been leading the fight for increased medical facilities for the Armed Forces.

"I shall press for the earliest possible passage of legislation to safeguard the health of dependents of military personnel," Congressman Rivers declared. "Ever since the days of Valley Forge, the Congress has steadfastly insisted that military dependents receive the best possible medical care," he continued. "I shall do everything possible to counteract those forces which are moving heaven and earth to take away this traditional contract right from men of our Armed Forces."

It is recalled that shortly before Congress recessed last month until after the November elections, Representative Rivers, alarmed at the current threats to the dependent care program, introduced legislation directing the Armed Forces to provide this long-standing service. The Navy already has specific legislation authorizing dependent care; the authority for the Army and Air Force, however, to take care of dependents is not spelled out so explicitly in law, but is implicit in Congressional appropriations through the years.

Mr. Rivers has declared that it is his intention, and that of colleagues on the House Armed Services Committee, to reassert in forthright terminology the Congress' determination to provide medical care for dependents.

"I know that there is a movement under foot by persons I do not even care to name to do away with dependent care," Representative Rivers asserted. "But they will not be successful. Dependents of men in the Armed Services," he continued, "must not be left to the mercy of temporary bureaucrats."

Representative Rivers, who earlier this year conducted the sweeping inquiry into the pre-Korea hospital economy program and whose findings prompted him to appeal, unsuccessfully, to the Department of Defense for revocation of the order closing hospitals, emphasized that the benefits of the dependent care program must apply equally to persons on active duty and to those who have been retired "after long years of service to the Nation."

He maintained that because thousands of men with families are now being brought on active duty during the present emergency "the dependent care problem is more acute than ever before. As a consequence," he added, "I shall seek the earliest possible action on the dependent care bill."

Meantime, he assured that his special

THE WAR IN KOREA

WITH United Nations forces deep in enemy territory in North Korea world attention is now focused on the mid-Pacific conference of President Truman and General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, which will take place this weekend.

The White House announcement last Tuesday of the forthcoming meeting came with dramatic suddenness. It had been previously disclosed that the President would fly to St. Louis this week, but there had been no hint that he was planning a trip to the Pacific where for the first time he would meet his top military commander in the Far East.

On Thursday the President left Missouri and flew westward over the Pacific, being scheduled to arrive in Hawaii the following day. General MacArthur was due to fly eastward from Japan to meet the President at an undisclosed point.

In a brief statement the President said that he and General MacArthur had arranged the meeting in order to discuss the final phase of the Korean operation. He said that other matters within General MacArthur's responsibility would also be discussed.

Accompanying the President are General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup, and Presidential Adviser W. Averill Harriman. The character of the party indicates that international political questions, as well as military problems, may be among the subjects to be considered at the conference.

The military situation in Korea continues to improve, with satisfactory progress of United Nations forces operating against the enemy in North Korea. In the east the South Korean 3d division captured the port city of Wonsan, the most important prize thus far taken in North Korea. This industrial city has a population of 150,000, and is located 105 miles north of the 38th parallel and 95 miles due east of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

Much of Wonsan, particularly the manufacturing and oil refining section, was destroyed by repeated Allied air bombardments. However, port facilities are about 50 per cent intact, and the excellent harbor, with its splendid protected anchorage, will prove very useful in supplying logistical support for Allied troops during the North Korean campaign.

Surprisingly, the excellent Wonsan airfield was practically undamaged and planes landed there a few hours after its capture. Whether or not it may be extensively used as an advance fighter base will depend on the military situation. Fields at Suwon, Seoul, Kimpo, and other points in that vicinity are now available, and it may not be necessary to utilize more advanced fields in North Korea.

The city of Wonsan was taken after a sharp battle lasting about 24 hours. The resistance of the Reds was much less than had been expected, since the loss of this east coast terminus of the east-west railroad and highway extending across the peninsula to the North Korean capital of Pyongyang is a severe blow to the Communists.

The South Korean Capital Division, which had been moving north farther inland, joined the 3d Division at Wonsan. Patrols were sent to the north and east and contacted Red troops withdrawing from the Wonsan area. It is believed that North Korean troops will be concentrated for the defense of Pyongyang, and when defeated will attempt to retreat across the northwestern boundary into Manchuria to find asylum, and perhaps an opportunity for rehabilitation, in Red China.

In the 100-mile march from the 38th parallel to Wonsan the South Korean troops were enthusiastically welcomed by the inhabitants. It is estimated that more than 90 per cent of the people of North Korea are violently opposed to the Communist rule which had been imposed on them for more than five years.

North of Seoul the American 1st Cavalry Division crossed the border this week and immediately encountered heavy resistance. It moved several miles forward astride the main north-south highway to Pyongyang. Extensive fields of land mines and a system of log pillboxes, enclosing machine gun nests, barred the way and slowed the progress of the troops.

Accompanying the 1st Cavalry Division are the British and Australian brigades, which were flown north from the southern area to participate in this operation. Other reinforcing units are in the vicinity for utilization as required.

Farther east the South Korean 6th Division was also meeting considerable opposition, but was making steady gains. In this general area it is estimated that two North Korean divisions are opposing the advance.

Prior to sending American troops into North Korea General MacArthur broadcast a surrender demand to the North Korean government, and also distributed by air millions of leaflets, repeating the demand and publishing the United Nations resolution, authorizing the stabilization and rehabilitation of all Korea.

For several days the demand was ignored, then the North Korean radio broadcast a statement from the Red government, announcing that its troops would continue to fight to the death. This apparently leaves no alternative except the complete destruction of the remnants of the Red army in order to establish peace.

In the southern part of the peninsula several Allied divisions are methodically eliminating large pockets of enemy troops caught behind the lines during the general Allied offensive which followed the Inchon landings. Large numbers of prisoners are taken daily, and the cumulative total of captured Reds is now in the neighborhood of 60,000.

General MacArthur's headquarters estimated that about 170,000 Communist soldiers have been killed or wounded, bringing the total of North Korean losses, including prisoners, since the opening of hostilities on 25 June to approximately 230,000. If these estimates are accurate the North Korean army must have been far larger than originally supposed.

In any event it appears certain that the great bulk of the Red fighting force has been destroyed. Enemy troops now being encountered include remnants of divisions able to extricate themselves from the Allied offensive in the south, and also large numbers of untrained conscripts, hastily forced into the army in a desperate attempt to halt the Allied advance.

During the past month the Reds have been extraordinarily active in sowing mines in coastal waters, particularly along the Korean east coast. Two American destroyers were damaged and a small minesweeper was sunk by mines. In September Allied warships destroyed 65 enemy mines, and during October the score seems certain to be much higher.

Last week an air patrol discovered a field of 16 mines near the east coast, and this week a helicopter found 61 mines in the coastal waters south of Wonsan. Most of the mines in these fields were moored, but some were floating. Some of the mines were of an obsolete type, used in World War I, but others were of apparently recent Russian manufacture.

The presence of large numbers of mines along the east coast indicates a futile effort to prevent Naval vessels from furnishing gunfire in support of South Korean troops moving north along the coastal road. While the thickly sown mines presented a hazard to Naval operations they did not hamper the highly effective support provided by Allied warships for the South Korean drive deep into enemy territory.

Though handicapped by adverse weather conditions Allied Air Force and Naval planes gave close tactical support to ground troops in North Korea and at the same time knocked out enemy installations far behind the lines. Several Red airports were struck but no North Korean planes were encountered.

Some air strikes were made in the northern end of the peninsula. The Russian protest that two American jet planes crossed the Siberian border and hit a Soviet airfield 60 miles north of the boundary is being investigated.

British carrier-based planes inflicted heavy damage on the west coast port of Chinnampo, near the capital city of Pyongyang. American naval planes supported the South Korean advance to capture Wonsan.

On 12 Oct., the battleship USS Missouri, together with the heavy cruiser, USS Helena, and other British, Canadian and Australian warships pummeled the port of Chongjin, on the east coast of Korea, 34 miles southeast of the Manchuria border and 220 miles upcoast from Wonsan.

Vice Adm. Arthur D. Struble was in command of the task group which accomplished the bombardment.

The Navy Department this week issued a summary of Allied Naval activities in the Korean campaign from the outbreak of hostilities to the end of September. Included is a compilation of damage inflicted by Naval surface vessels and planes on enemy installations, troops, vessels, transportation facilities, war plants and supply depots. The report follows:

The Navy destroyed more than 65 mines in Korean waters in September.

Carrier planes and ship bombardment also destroyed 881 railroad cars and damaged 1,312 since the war in Korea began June 25. Thirty-five rail yards were damaged while eight complete trains were destroyed as UN Naval Forces put a considerable dent in the communication lines available to North Korean Forces. These figures are from a cumulative damage report up to midnight of September 30 which is tabulated later in this summary. Close air and surface vessel gunnery support of ground forces is continuing.

The greatest Navy-Marine show since the beginning of the war was the amphibious landing at Inchon. In the 13 day period between September 13 and 25, U. S. carrier based planes flew 3,330 combat sorties in support of UN ground forces in the Inchon-Seoul area. (Navy & Marine pilots flew 6,657 combat sorties from Navy carriers during the period 15 Sept.-3 Oct.)

Navy-Marine Panther jets, Corsair fighter bombers, Skyraider dive bombers eliminated NK troops, equipment, transportation facilities with 393,362 rounds 20MM, 100,050 rounds 50 caliber, 9,616 rockets, 601 tons general purpose bombs, 608 napalm fire bombs at Inchon.

Large numbers of enemy troops, estimated in thousands were killed by Naval and Marine airmen during repeated attacks over 170 enemy troop concentrations. Fifty-one enemy artillery and anti-aircraft guns were destroyed, 42 more received heavy damage. Thirteen tanks, 323 trucks, 240 miscellaneous vehicles, 35 locomotives, 116 railroad cars were destroyed during 13 day period by carrier based flyers. Freight yards, rail and highway bridges, tunnels, supply dumps, boats, docks and factories were destroyed by Navy and Marine Napalm and rockets in the 13-day period of the landing. Over 300 ships in the invasion armada sea-lifted over 50,000 tons of material in the initial landing phase.

In addition to their use during the Inchon landing, units of the famous Sea-Bees have been employed in construction tasks since the opening of hostilities.

Constant reconnaissance of the waters adjacent to Korea continues to be carried out by U. S. Navy P2V "Neptunes" and PBM "Mariners," and by RAF "Sunderlands."

Naval forces during the period continued to keep an "eye over its shoulder" on Formosa, a major commitment, while operating against the North Koreans.

The bulk of the supply of troops, weapons, ammunition, gasoline, food, equipment, and other types of supplies continues to be supplied to the Far East by U. S. Naval ships and M.S.T.S. under Naval command. The line of sea communications is more than 5,000 miles in length, over which the U. S. Navy exercises control. Many tens of thousands of troops, millions of tons of cargo and millions of barrels of gasoline and other petroleum products have been carried to the Far East in ships since the start of hostilities. Sea-lift and air-lift supplement one another, across

Top Air Officers Given New Posts

President Truman on 10 Oct. named Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining to be Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force with the rank of four-star general and simultaneously appointed Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad to succeed Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon as Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe.

General Cannon was designated Commanding General of the Tactical Air Command at Langley AFB, Va., by General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff. Lt. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards, former Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, who latterly has served as Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations, was given permanent assignment in the latter post.

A fifth shift of a top Air Force officer moves Maj. Gen. Richard E. Nugent to duty as Acting Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, in place of General Twining.

Former Commander-in-Chief of the Alaskan Command, a post now held by Lt. Gen. William E. Kepner, General Twining has been acting Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, since late this spring.

General Norstad has served as Acting Vice Chief of Staff since May, a post he assumed following the sudden death of General Muir S. Fairchild in March. General Cannon became Commanding General of USAFE in October 1948.

Early this year, before General Fairchild's death, there had been speculation that General Norstad, after serving as Commanding General of "Operation Swarmer," the huge airborne exercise in North Carolina, would be given duty as Commanding General of the Alaskan Command. However, his duty in Washington was extended to fill temporarily the No. 2 Air Force officer assignment, now given to General Twining.

Overseas Christmas Mail

Rules have been announced for mailing Christmas packages to men overseas. All mail should be posted not later than 15 Nov., and, for men in Japan and Korea, 1 Nov. has been set as the safest deadline. Packages going to remote outposts should be mailed immediately.

Greeting cards should observe the same deadlines and should be mailed first class.

Packages may weigh up to 70 pounds, and containers should be metal, wood or stout fiber board. The length plus the girth of the package should not exceed 100 inches. In the case of packages to APOs 124 and 125, care of Postmaster New York City, they should not exceed 50 pounds and should be correspondingly smaller.

Addresses should be written directly on the outside of the package, not on a gummed label. A second address, together with a list of the contents, should be placed inside the package in case of accident.

Packages should not contain matches or lighter fluid. Cigarettes and tobacco should not be sent to addresses in Austria, England, France, Germany, Italy and Trieste.

Maj. Hanst Honored

Maj. Kenneth F. Hanst, jr., who, since his retirement from active service in the Army, has been connected with the administration of the Army Mutual Aid Association, has completed the educational requirements of the American College of Life Underwriters, and on 27 Sept. was awarded the professional designation of Chartered Life Underwriter.

Major Hanst was congratulated by the Board of Directors, Counsellors and Officers of the Association at a luncheon at the Pentagon on 29 Sept. Those present included General Wade H. Haislip, Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Parker, Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, Maj. Gen. Carl A. Hardigg, Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, Maj. Gen. Ernest M. Brannon, Brig. Gen. William N. Gillmore, Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlop, Brig. Gen. William L. Sheep, Col. Richard D. LaGarde, and Col. John P. Dinsmore.

Academy Football

Army, with two less votes than all nine of the other top teams in the Nation together, garnered first place among college football teams this week in the Associated Press poll, while Navy lost her second game of the season.

Undeclared in 22 games, the Cadets added their latest victory to the string by downing Penn State 41-7 at West Point's Michie Stadium on Saturday.

Navy was overpowered by a strong Northwestern team, 22-0, at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore. The Midshipmen had lost their opening game of the season to Maryland by a score of 35-21.

Army, in its first game of the season, beat Colgate 28-0.

The schedules of remaining games for both teams are as follows:

Army

14 Oct. Michie at Yankee Stadium.
21 Oct. Harvard at Cambridge.
28 Oct. Columbia at Baker Field.
4 Nov. Pennsylvania at Franklin Field.
11 Nov. New Mexico at Michie Stadium.
18 Nov. Stanford at Palo Alto.

Navy

14 Oct. Princeton at Princeton.
21 Oct. Southern California at Baltimore.
28 Oct. Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.
4 Nov. Notre Dame at Cleveland.
11 Nov. Tulane at Baltimore.
18 Nov. Columbia at New York.
The two teams will oppose each other in the annual service classic at Philadelphia on 2 Dec.

Navy Dr. Certified

Capt. Ross W. Weisiger, MC, USN, recently was certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine. He is presently on duty at the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia.

Unity a Fact, Says Johnson

Unification is now an undisputed fact, former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson told the American Legion 9 Oct. at Los Angeles.

"In Korea," he said, "our forces on land, at sea, and in the air—Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force—have given a superb performance in teamwork. Unification is now an undisputed fact. The unification we have been striving to attain was reached on the battlefield where it counts most."

"There are trouble spots all over the world," the former Secretary declared. "The communist hydra has many heads and the cutting of one may result in the sprouting of another to take its place. We must therefore remain strong, and grow even stronger, so that we may be more successful in deterring aggression. That means greater forces. That means Universal Military Service, and a full year of it at that."

"Note well each of the three words—universal, military, and service. The program should be universal in the sense that there would be no exemptions. It should be military in that the training would be conducted by the Armed Forces themselves within their own organization for the primary purpose of making good soldiers, sailors, airmen, or marines. Finally, there should be service—at home or abroad, in peace or in war, wherever the young man may be needed by our Armed Forces in the interests of more effective National Defense."

"Universal Military Service has long been a 'must' in our American Legion defense program. It means stronger partners of greater faith in freedom, and more willingness to contribute men and resources for our common support. It means the mobilization of men and munitions on a scale unprecedented in our history short of all-out war. It means heavy expense and onerous taxes to meet the cost of defense, and it will mean a heavy financial strain on our economy. It means, too, that we must watch ourselves carefully lest we over-expand and destroy the health of our economy which is still one of the primary military assets of the free world."

"The taxation and the military service we may have to bear to meet the present emergency may become a permanent and fixed cost on our price of freedom. But however costly, strenuous and tiring this constant struggle may become, this much we must prudently keep before us always: Years and years of preparedness to avoid war, if successful, are vastly preferable to a single year of unlimited war, its casualties, its sacrifices, and its risk of defeat."

"I have an abiding faith in the destiny of our country. I am confident, as all of you are, that by living together harmoniously and working together wholeheartedly, we will be able to reduce these risks. I have great confidence in our military team. I have seen it plan. I have seen it operate. I have had the great honor to serve as Secretary of Defense, or you might say as its captain or manager."

"And speaking of managers, I am reminded of the bleacher fans at the Yankee Stadium who credited the victories of the team to the players and always blamed 'Casey' Stengel for the temporary setbacks. So it has often been with me. I am not here today, however, to discuss my own contributions or my own shortcomings in my administration of the Department of Defense. I shall leave that entirely to the historian—other than to say to you, my friends, that I have kept the faith and, God willing, shall continue to do so. I had a job to do and, to the best of my ability, I did it."

"In conclusion, I merely want to repeat a quotation from Abraham Lincoln which I have often given before. It was a good rule. It is a good guide for any public servant. It reads as follows:

"I do the best I know how, the very best I can and I mean to keep on doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right what is said against me won't amount to anything; if it brings me out wrong, all the angels swearing that I was right would make no difference."

Heads Military Order

Maj. Gen. Milton Grafty Baker, former Commanding General of the Pennsylvania National Guard, was elected National Commander-in-Chief of the Military Order of World Wars of the United States at the organization's national convention in Swampscott, Mass., 1-4 Oct.

At the same time, Rear Adm. Harold C. Train, USN-Ret., was elected Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief, and Brig. Gen. Melvin J. Mass, USMCR, was named Junior Vice Commander-in-Chief.

General Baker is the founder and Superintendent of the Valley Forge Military Academy.

General Officer Promotions

It is now expected that the White House will release a list of recess promotions of Army officers to general officer ranks shortly after the President returns from his meeting with General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

No information is available as to the number of officers who will receive promotions to and within general officer ranks. It is known, however, that requirements of the expansion program have created a number of vacancies in general officer ranks.

Coincidentally, there has been speculation that some of the top officers in Korea might receive promotions, but there is no certainty that such advancements will be made at this time.

Conceivably, General of the Army MacArthur might discuss this problem with the President during their weekend meeting. Normally, the Commanding General of a field army holds four-star rank and a corps commander is a three-star officer. If this were followed in Korea, promotions would result for Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander, and Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond, X Corps commander.

Promotion Plans

The second round of Army temporary promotions is now underway, with a new list of officers advanced from first lieutenant to captain slated for early release.

THE JOURNAL, issue of 30 Sept., published the names of 2218 first lieutenants promoted to the temporary rank of captain, effective 27 Sept.

Following release of the second list of temporary promotions to captain, the Army plans to release a second list of promotions to the temporary rank of major, then to lieutenant colonel and finally to colonel.

The second lists will not terminate the current temporary promotion program. Best available estimates this week indicated that for the remainder of the calendar year, there may be as many as three additional lists of temporary promotion for each rank.

Yet to be released is the first list of officers of the Nurse Corps, WAC and Women's Medical Specialist Corps chosen for higher temporary rank.

Meantime, a board will be convened on 23 Oct. to select Regular officers for permanent advancement. As yet, names of board members have not been released. Presumably, the delay results from the fact that because of the emergency situation the Army will not know until almost the last moment what general officers will be available to serve on the board.

In addition to the 2218 first lieutenants promoted to the temporary rank of captain, recent issues of THE JOURNAL have reported advancement of 785 captains to the temporary rank of major, 885 majors to be temporary lieutenant colonels, and 666 lieutenant colonels to be colonels.

MDW Commissary Permits

Expansion of the military establishment in the Washington, D. C., area due to the Korean situation has made necessary the establishment of ceilings on the number of permanent commissary permits issued, according to Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, Commanding the Military District of Washington.

General Herren said that all commissaries are currently operating at capacity to handle the influx of new customers and that due to the situation and the further anticipated increase in demand, it has been necessary to establish waiting lists of applicants for the commissary cards.

Currently new applicants are placed on a waiting list for permanent cards. In the meantime they are issued temporary cards authorizing them to make purchases one specific day per week. As openings become available, temporary cards are replaced by permanent ones. In addition, customer lists are currently being screened at all commissaries to eliminate those who have recently left the area or are now ineligible for other reasons. This action is expected to take care of a great many applicants now on waiting lists.

General Herren believes that these measures will assure that all eligible personnel can be taken care of but added that if current plans do not meet anticipated needs, further action will be taken to alleviate the situation as it develops.

Personnel authorized by law to patronize commissaries includes members of all three branches of the Armed Forces and certain other categories specified by Congressional act. Currently, restrictions apply only to commissaries in the Washington Metropolitan Area. Post Exchanges are not affected by the ruling.

Army Ranger Companies

Organization of Ranger Infantry companies, planned to be integral in Army infantry divisions, was announced by the Army on 10 Oct.

These hard-hitting and highly mobile units will be available to division commanders for special missions of the general types performed by their predecessors in World War II. A Ranger Training Section has been established at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., to develop, test and conduct the organization, equipment, doctrine, tactics, technique and training of these units.

Initially, four Ranger companies, each of five officers and 110 men, will be formed. Each company will be organized into three platoons of three 10-man squads each. Every Ranger will be equipped with a light automatic rifle and each squad will have either a 60-mm mortar or a bazooka. Each man will carry two rounds on his person for these weapons, in addition to his automatic rifle ammunition and certain demolition equipment.

Ranger companies will be composed entirely of volunteers. Men will be selected for the first units on the basis of high mental and physical standards. All will be qualified as parachutists. Training will stress use of foreign weapons and maps, demolitions and sabotage, guerrilla warfare, amphibious and airborne operations, and close combat.

Present plans contemplate assignment of one Ranger company to each Infantry division.

The decision to organize units of this type resulted from World War II experience accentuated by combat lessons learned in the fighting in Korea, where enemy forces made highly successful use of small groups trained, armed and equipped for the specific purpose of infiltrating United Nations lines.

The Army made effective use of Ranger units in World War II, with Ranger battalions seeing action in North Africa, Sicily, Italy, Europe, New Guinea and the Philippines.

Ranger companies now being organized will be authorized to wear the shoulder insignia and otherwise continue the traditions of the Ranger outfits of World War II.

Psychological Warfare

The Department of the Army this week announced establishment of a Psychological Warfare Division, with Brig. Gen. Robert A. McClure as chief. General McClure was in charge of psychological warfare operations in North Africa and Western Europe during World War II.

The new agency is at present functioning as a section of the G-3 Division of the Army General Staff, but General McClure said that it would soon be made a separate division of the Special Staff, comparable to the Chemical Corps. It will develop equipment and techniques for psychological warfare, which will include radio broadcasts, loud speaker units, preparation and dissemination of leaflets, and collection and evaluation of information pertaining to morale and other conditions, indicative of the type of propaganda which might prove most effective in a particular military situation.

Arrangements are being made for training individuals and specialized units in psychological warfare. The training will include instruction in foreign languages, radio and communications techniques, printing, evaluation of psychological warfare intelligence and utilization of specialized equipment.

Research and development of special equipment will be stimulated. It is expected that many new and ingenious devices will be developed for the dissemination of propaganda in any future conflict. For example, General McClure envisages the possibility of the development of a guided missile capable of circling over an enemy city for a half hour or more, broadcasting propaganda and dropping leaflets.

While plans for psychological warfare operations in a future emergency have been in progress for the past five years, since the close of World War II, General McClure said they were undoubtedly speeded up because of the Korean crisis. Psychological warfare operations are now included in all current war plans.

Peacetime responsibility for policy guidance in connection with international propaganda now rests with the State Department. The agency which would have this responsibility in war has not been determined.

The Navy and Air Force have psychological warfare activities comparable to those of the Army, and the Services work in close cooperation, under the general coordination of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In the field psychological warfare operations are the responsibility of the theater commander. In Korea these operations have proved very effective in inducing large numbers of the enemy to surrender. "Safe conduct passes" dropped by Allied planes behind enemy lines have led many North Koreans to give themselves up to United Nations forces.

Advertisers in the Army Navy Air Force Journal support the Armed Forces and are familiar with their requirements.

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening.

All Outdoors is saying: "GO AHEAD"

Listen well, good sir—that call is for you.

The call of swift, smooth roads, of far-away horizons, of the brisk, invigorating season when nature spreads her lavish colors.

It's the call to come see this great land of yours—in the manner you have so well earned.

To seat yourself behind an easy wheel, touch toe to the treadle of a greathearted straight-eight power plant, go traveling in the comfort, the room and the style you have so long aimed for.

Here are the soft, sure-footed tires, on four coil-sprung wheels, to spin away the miles in blissfully gentle ease.

Here is the look and the size of a car to do you proud, the most easily spotted of any on the highway, rich in gleaming chrome, sleek in its tapering lines.

Here's room and to spare. Here's Buick's exclusive Fireball power to level the hills, shorten the straightaways. Here's light and easy handling—and if you so elect, the perfect smoothness of Dynaflow Drive* to take the toil out of traffic and put restfulness in the long day's drive.

And here's all of this in ready financial reach.

For this Buick SPECIAL, if anyone needs tell you, is a brawny straight-eight that's priced less than many a six, a car big in vious inequities which are likely to result from the current income tax exemption measure for men and women of the Armed Forces.

At the same time, another Congressman this week voiced the opinion that additional benefits should be provided for ground force troops. It is known that consideration is being given to legislation which would provide special hazard duty pay for Armed and Marine Corps ground troops, who have sustained the greatest number of casualties in the Korean fighting.

Although Congress is now in recess, Representative Olin E. Teague (D-Tex.) inserted in the Congressional Record of Oct. 10 a lengthy tribute to the infantry soldier. The title of his remarks, included in the Appendix of the Record, was, "Let's Give the Queen of Battles a Better Break."

Said Congressman Teague: "Recent reports from the Korean front have, I believe, emphasized the great importance of an adequate infantry component to our national defense. However, based on my experience as an infantry battalion commander in World War II, I have long felt that the Infantry both as a branch of our Armed Forces and as individuals deserved a consideration, in several aspects, more commensurate to the tremendous job it is called upon to perform in time of war."

In this connection, I believe that certain measures, within reason, could be taken to improve the individual infantryman's lot which would, simultaneously, improve his combat efficiency as well as that of his unit and tend to mitigate somewhat the general impression that the infantry is the least desirable wartime service."

The tenor of his statement indicates plainly that Representative Teague would be an effective spokesman for hazard duty pay for ground forces in action should such a measure be introduced to Congress.

Aircraft Organization

The Stratos Corporation, wholly-owned subsidiary of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation, will become a division of Fairchild, according to an announcement by Mr. Richard S. Boutelle, president.

Stratos is located at Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y., sharing the plant there with Fairchild's Engine Division and Guided Missiles Division. Under the direction of F. E. Newbold, jr., general manager, it manufactures cabin superchargers, cooling units and associated equipment for commercial transport aircraft and military fighters and bombers.

Air Force Contract

The Colonial Radio and Television division of Sylvania Electric Productions, Inc., of Buffalo, N. Y., has been awarded a $2,473,200 Air Force order for power junction boxes and transmitters. The company made similar products for the Armed Forces during World War II.

Reserve Gen. Retired

Maj. Gen. Edward S. Bres, AUS, has been placed on the Army of the United States Retired List with entitlement to retirement pay from 1 Oct. under the provisions of P. L. 810.

New Airmen Barracks

Six "U" shaped, single story barracks capable of housing more than 500 airmen are being constructed at a total cost of $130,000 at Wheelus Field, Tripoli, Libya, to replace existing prefabricated type barracks at the MATS Atlantic Division base.

Col. Fred O. Easley, jr., is commanding officer of Wheelus Field and its 1603d Air Base Group.

Expand National Guard

Maj. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, Acting Chief of the National Guard Bureau, has announced initiation of a recruiting campaign to bring in 200,000 recruits for the National Guard during the current fiscal year. During fiscal year 1951, the National Guard has a ceiling of 350,000 men.

Annual Physical Exams

Navy and Marine Corps officers who have not had a complete physical examination during the current calendar year must complete such an examination between now and 31 Dec., according to a directive.

In the Washington, D. C., area, commanders, lieutenant colonels and above, with the exception of aviators, will be examined at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.

Lieutenant commanders, majors and below, except aviators, will be examined either at the Naval Dispensary, Navy Department, or at the Naval Dispensary, Arlington Annex.

All aviators in the district will be examined at the Naval Air Station Dispensary, Anacostia, D. C.

USNA PIO

Lt. Comdr. John C. Parry, USN, reported 9 Oct. to the Headquarters, Southern River Naval Command and the U. S. Naval Academy for duty as the staff Public Information Officer. Commander Parry goes to Annapolis from the 13th Naval District, Seattle, Wash., where he served as Assistant Public Information Officer, since 1949.

He has relieved Lt. (jg) Sam A. Pillar, SC, USN, who has been Acting Public Information Officer for the past few months.

... FLY!

In today's tense military situation—time-saving Air Travel is imperative for the Official Traveler.

Air Travel in 1/5 rail time saves wasting valuable manpower in transit—saves per diem allowances—saves tiresome layovers and costs of extra meals. Yet the cost of flying is only about the same as rail with Pullman.

The Scheduled Airlines' faster, more direct service between 500 important cities and principal military installations is now the transportation system that's geared to the urgency of all Defense missions!

Air Travel today must be regarded as standard for vital activities of the Department of Defense.

AF Flying Safety

To increase the effectiveness of its flying safety program, the Air Force will assign approximately 200 persons, mostly officers, to Norton AFB, Calif., where a new office, Deputy Inspector General, will be established.

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, said the position has been created to emphasize the technical inspection of all types of USAF aircraft.

The new office will be designated the office of the "Deputy Inspector General for Technical Inspection and Flight Safety Research." Maj. Gen. Victor E. Bertrandias formerly Director of Flight Safety Research, also at Norton AFB, has been elevated to the newly created staff post. He will be serving as a deputy to Lt. Gen. Howard A. Craig, The Inspector General of the Air Force.

There are two other Deputy Inspectors General: Maj. Gen. John F. Carroll, Deputy IG for Security, who has under him the Directorate of Special Investigations and the Air Provost Marshal; and Maj. Gen. Eugene L. Eubank, the Deputy Inspector General at the Field Office, Kelly AFB, San Antonio, Tex.

A Directorate of Technical Inspection has been established to operate in conjunction with the Directorate of Flight Safety Research under the new staff office of the Deputy Inspector General.

The Directorate of Technical Inspection will be headed by Brig. Gen. Thomas O. Hardin who was previously assigned as Chief of the Air Reserve Division in the Office of the Special Assistant to the Chief of Staff for Reserve Forces. The Director of Flight Safety Research will be Brig. Gen. Oscar F. Carlson who has been serving as deputy to General Bertrandias.

Former JCS Secretary

Col. Joseph Dasher, USAF, formerly Assistant Secretary to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has been named Special Assistant to the Commanding General of the Air Force Indocentrination Wing at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Army Housing for Airmen

Army housing at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, is being made available to house-hunting Air Force personnel.

This was announced in a letter from Lt. Gen. H. S. Aurand, USARPAC commander, to Brig. Gen. H. Q. Huglin, deputy commander of Military Air Transport Service, Hickam AFB, Hawaii.

The letter was in response to a recent Air Force announcement that over 300 housing units were needed to accommodate MATS personnel stationed at Hickam AFB.

The total number of housing units being offered was not announced, but Army spokesmen indicated at least 15 officers' quarters and about 50 non-commissioned officers' quarters would make up the initial loan.

The quarters will be made available immediately on a "temporary basis only." This is interpreted to mean that the Army may reclaim its housing on 30-days' notice in the event it becomes necessary. Such action, however, is not considered probable this year.

The Schofield Barracks housing became available as a result of the departure of the 5th RCT for Korea in July. A number of families returned to mainland homes while others took civilian housing in Honolulu.

Air Base Commanders

Col. George W. Parry, who has been commanding officer of Reese AFB, Tex., will assume a similar post at Scott AFB, Ill., and will be succeeded by Col. Thomas J. Barrett, commanding officer of the Pilot Training Group at Nellis AFB, Nev. Col. George H. Blase, who served as deputy commander at Reese AFB, has reported to Scott AFB for duty with the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations of the Air Training Command, headed by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Harper.

Air Training Command

The Air Training Command, with Headquarters at Scott AFB, Ill., has released the first annual report ever put out by the command. The report, which covered the fiscal year for 1950, showed strikingly the increase in cost of training over the 12-month period.

In July, 1949, the monthly cost of overall training was set at $27,000,000. A year later the cost was at a peak of over $33,000,000. The rising costs were due primarily to expansion of the training programs to meet Air Force requirements.

Prior to the release of its first annual report, the Air Training Command (ATRC) forwarded its report to the Secretary of the Air Force to be included in his annual report. The new step taken by ATRC makes it possible to present the training program to a much wider audience than before.

Air Training Command, which is the largest major command within the Air Force, is headed by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Harper from his Headquarters at Scott AFB. Its primary mission is the training of rated personnel such as pilots and navigators, and the training of a great variety of technicians for the Air Force. ATRC also trains a limited number of personnel for the Army and Navy and many of the programs are also available to nations belonging to the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

From a production point of view Air Training Command last year produced over 135,000 officers and airmen from its 164 courses of training. This training was conducted at 19 bases stretching from Florida to California. The majority of the personnel trained were assigned to other major commands with USAF.

The problem that faced the command stemmed largely from economy measures that stringently restricted training during the first part of the fiscal year. This pressure caused Air Training Command to separate 810 officers and ground another 530 rated officers. Economy also reared its head in the reduction of student pilots in tactical aircraft.

Despite the restrictions 1950 was a satisfactory year for achievements in Training Command. The Indocentrination Center at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas, turned out nearly 45,000 basic airmen, versed in the primary fundamentals of military science and qualified to enter any one of 144 technical training courses.

The Airmen career field, a unique system of personnel administration outlining the steps from bottom to top in the various careers offered, achieved considerable progress. Under the career field, advancement and promotion is up to the initiative of the individual airman.

Fiscal year 1950 was the first in which women were trained in many of the technical courses formerly closed to females. Nearly 1,100 WAFS (Women of the Air Forces) were graduated from 31 courses open to them. The courses included skills such as teletype operation, supply, control tower operation and weather.

By the end of the fiscal year ATRC had produced over 57,000 technicians, or approximately 3,000 more than required by USAF. Despite this number, a shortage of radar and communications specialists continued to exist, due primarily to lack of equipment and available manpower.

Select Captains

An Air Force selection board will be convened at the Pentagon on or about 6 Nov. to consider approximately 4360 Air Force permanent captains for permanent promotion to major—most of them to face the "best qualified" instead of the "fully qualified" method of selection.

Meantime, the selection board which reviewed the records of approximately 2500 permanent majors for permanent advancement to lieutenant colonel has completed its task and the list is expected to be approved by the President momentarily. It was believed that the White House might have acted on the list this week but for the President's departure to meet General of the Army Douglas MacArthur somewhere in the Pacific.

The Air Force said that the names of officers selected for permanent promotion to major will be submitted to the President for approval for placement on Air Force recommended lists, with actual promotions to be phased over the next 12 to 18 months.

First promotions of these officers to the permanent rank of major probably will be made in January 1951, an official statement related.

Included among the approximate 4360 officers to be considered are 78 permanent captains who were passed over by a similar board last December. Under provisions of the Officer Personnel Act, two consecutive failures at selection means separation from the service.

The board will consider the following officers:

1. All permanent captains on the USAF promotion list, including WAFs, whose dates of rank as permanent captain are prior to 2 July 1948—approximately 4,160. All permanent grade captains who meet this eligibility requirement will have completed at least 8½ years' promotion list service on 31 Dec. 1951. Officers will be selected under a "best qualified" method of selection.

2. Permanent grade captains on following promotion lists are also to be considered:

Promotion lists and probable extent of consideration.

Medical—through Marchese, Vincent, 19311A.

Dental—through Reynolds, Robert P., 18943A.

Veterinary — through Gorman, Harry A., 19007A.

Medical Service—through Wehrman, Edwin M., 19631A.

Approximately 189 officers may be considered from these lists. The "fully qualified" method of selection will be utilized by the Selection Board. Medical, Dental, and Veterinary officers must also pass professional examinations.

3. The board will also consider all Air Force Nurses in the permanent grade of captain whose dates of rank as permanent captain are prior to 26 Aug. 1947. "Best qualified" method of selection will be utilized. Approximately 24 Nurses are eligible for consideration.

4. In addition, the board will consider all Air Force Chaplains in the permanent grade of captain whose names are not already carried on the Air Force recommended list for promotion to Major who complete 14 years' promotion list service prior to 1 Jan. 1952. "Fully qualified" method of selection will be utilized. Approximately 9 chaplains are eligible for consideration.

The board will be convened under authority of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, the Women's Armed Services Integration Act of 1948, and the Army-Navy Nurses Act of 1947, as amended.

Any officer scheduled to be considered who desires to submit a written communication under provisions of Section 507 (c), Officer Personnel Act, should immediately forward such communication direct to Director of Military Personnel, Headquarters, USAF, Washington 25, D. C., Attention: Promotions and Separations Division. Air Mail should be utilized where appropriate.

Family Medical Care

hospital subcommittee and the entire House Armed Services Committee would keep a close watch on the Department of Defense and particularly the Office of Medical Services to protect the dependent care program against further threats.

Although details were not made available, it is known that the Department of Defense Management Committee reviewed the present functions of the Office of Medical Services at a meeting late last week. THE JOURNAL was told that efforts are being made to resolve differences of interpretation regarding the scope of the Director of Medical Service's responsibilities, particularly as related to those of the Surgeons General.

It is known that the Management Committee is aware that there are varying viewpoints among Department of Defense and Army, Navy and Air Force officials regarding the exact authority of the Director of Medical Services. Recent Congressional testimony plainly has evidenced the fact that a completely harmonious working relationship does not now exist between the top medical officers of the Armed Forces and Dr. Meiling. It is believed that Secretary of Defense Marshall will want this matter straightened out as soon as possible by the Management Committee.

It is known, however, that a new charter has been prepared for the Office of Medical Services and presumably this charter was studied by the Management Committee, headed by General Joseph T. McNarney, USAF.

Whether the new charter will give increased authority to the Surgeons General of the Armed Forces, as has been speculated, or whether the changes are mainly related to tightening up of wording, could not be ascertained.

It is recalled that Dr. Meiling was to have testified before the House Armed Services Committee early this month, but his appearance was postponed. Undoubtedly, the Committee was informed of the Management Committee's plan to review the activities of the Office of Medical Services and decided to delay summoning Dr. Meiling to Capitol Hill.

The speculation persists that Dr. Meiling may tender a pro forma resignation to Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall, since he was a personal appointee of former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. Defense spokesmen say, however, that no such resignation has been submitted and intimate that such an action will not take place, at least until after Dr. Meiling confers with Secretary Marshall.

In another development relating to medical activities of the Armed Forces, the Department of Defense this week asked Selective Service to induct, between November and January, a total of 922 medical doctors, 500 dentists and 100 veterinarians for service with the Army.

Bomb Commanders Decorated

For exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services during the period 5 July to 10 Aug. as commanders of bombardment groups engaging the North Korean enemy, Maj. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, jr., has decorated Col. James V. Edmundson with an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit, and Col. Claude E. Putnam, jr., with the Legion of Merit.

Commanding the 22d Bombardment Group, Colonel Edmundson was cited for "the excellence of the flexibility, mobility and precision of the strategic and tactical bombing which severely crippled troop and supply movement." During that period, his group flew without a single operational or combat loss.

Leading his 92d Bombardment Group in the first mass B-29 strike against North Korean Communists, Colonel Putnam was cited for "superior performance of his group since that time and for the extremely high morale of his organization."

The citations read in part, "for flights of over 3,000 hours and dropping over 2,000 tons of bombs with unprecedented precision, these groups reflect great credit upon the United States Air Force and they are in keeping with the high standards and ideals of the Armed Forces."

Advertisers in the Army Navy Air Force Journal support the Armed Forces and are familiar with their requirements.

Jet Pilots Honored

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, this week presented Oak Leaf Clusters to the Distinguished Flying Cross to Col. David C. Schilling and Lt. Col. William D. Ritchie, for their historic trans-Atlantic jet flight on 22 Sept.

For Colonel Schilling, it was the 10th cluster. He completed the entire crossing from England to Limestone AFB, Me., as his F-34E fighter was refueled three times en route. Colonel Ritchie, unable to complete the flight because of refueling difficulties, was forced to bail out 100 miles northeast of Goose Bay, Labrador.

Under the sponsorship of the U. S. Navy Allison has developed a world's "first" in the new T40 Twin Turbo-Prop—an engine which, for its horsepower, is the lightest-weight and smallest-size propeller-type power plant ever cleared for flight.

5500 horsepower for only 2500 pounds in weight, with an exceedingly small diameter, the Allison T40 Twin Turbo-Prop engine saves valuable weight and space in the airplane.

These savings mean better aircraft performance in terms of higher speed, greater payload and increased range.

SATURDAY, 14 OCTOBER 1950

"The primary purpose for maintaining a national security establishment is to insure peace by impressing upon the political leaders and the professional soldiers of other nations, both friendly and unfriendly, that no act of aggression against the United States, however sudden, could succeed."—GENERAL OF THE ARMY GEORGE C. MARSHALL.

Department of Defense Organization. The Marshall-Lovett team, which has operated so successfully in the past, began to work together again last week when Mr. Robert A. Lovett took the oath of office as Deputy Secretary to the new Secretary of Defense, General George C. Marshall. They pulled together through World War II when General Marshall was Chief of Staff of the Army and Mr. Lovett was Assistant Secretary of War for Air. Later, they worked together in the State Department where they effected a departmental reorganization that left a lasting imprint on its operating procedures. Together they represent a vast and wide background. The conception of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as it operated during the war may be credited to a considerable extent to General Marshall, for it was he who persuaded President Roosevelt to bring Admiral Leahy back from France and make him Chief of Staff to the President and, hence, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, which latter position has since been perpetuated in law. Throughout the war General Marshall served intimately with Admirals Leahy and King and was nominally over the Air Force, although he accorded General Arnold almost complete autonomy. Mr. Lovett, on his part, served with the Navy in World War I and as the immediate civilian contact with the Air Force in World War II. Thus, we may look forward to these two top leaders taking steps to shape the Department of Defense more closely along the lines evolved from their long experience and thinking. This might include a general tightening up, or streamlining of the organization. Fewer and smaller boards and committees may be expected and it is also logical to speculate that such units will be more and more charged with rendering advice rather than taking action. Already broad study of the powers and scope of existing boards is underway. General Marshall has long wanted to bring about a procedure whereby the Joint Chiefs of Staff could express annually, through the Secretary of Defense, to the President and Congress, their professional military opinion as to what is required for the National Defense. This, he feels, should be done apart from budgetary or political considerations. Such a report, he believes, should have only the status of recommendations and should then be considered by the administration and Congress in light of the national economy and foreign policy. Another point in General Marshall's philosophy is his strong feeling for the welfare of the Service personnel. In the course of a discussion before a Senate committee considering the exemption of fathers from the wartime draft, General Marshall urged that the men in the Service be given all the support necessary. At that time he made the characteristic statement: "My emotions, so far as I am permitted to have them, relate to the soldiers, relate to those fathers that are in the Army, what happens to them in this affair, to what extent they are backed up." It can be assumed that he will press for such morale items as the making of necessary revisions in the promotion act, assuring a sound program of medical care for dependents, etc. Mr. Lovett is particularly conscious of the necessity for research and development to keep weapons and equipment abreast of scientific progress and industry prepared to meet war's needs and may be expected to take a deep interest in such matters. The next few months should bring some interesting developments in the Department of Defense.

Military Medical Services. We wish Dr. Richard Melling, Director of the OSD Office of Medical Services, had told a little more complete story in his address last week to the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons. He belittled the military medical services by charging that from 1945 to 1949 (when he became OSD Medical Director) they over emphasized "big" hospitals and "big" residency programs. He might have carried this story further and explained that three of the general hospitals closed on his recommendations have since been ordered reequipped, restaffed, and reopened to take care of the casualties from Korea and that other Service hospitals, recently drastically reduced on his recommendation, are now to be expanded. He might have revealed, too, that as a result of the residency programs, which he belittled, the medical services had specialists immediately available for the Korean crisis instead of having to wait to get them from civilian life. Dr. Melling did speak highly of the policy of air transportation of casualties and the excellent effect it had in saving the lives of wounded. This policy of air evacuation had long been advocated by the Surgeons General of the military departments and was used wherever planes and equipment were available. Maj. Gen. David N. W. Grant, then Air Surgeon, and Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, present Surgeon General of the Army and then in charge of operations, were both strong advocates of air evacuations during World War II, and they have spoken frequently and emphatically for its adoption as a policy. Subsequently the three Surgeons General made a joint statement urging it and an ad hoc committee was appointed from the three Services and it, too, recommended air evacuation as a standing policy. This was approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Department of Defense—just about the time Dr. Melling became Director of the OSD Office of Medical Services. The records of the medical services of the Armed Forces in World War II and to date have been outstanding and have justly earned the admiration of the nation and the profession. They deserve praise and encouragement, not public reflection upon their policies which have proved wise and far seeing.

Travel Reimbursement

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The September 2 issue of your JOURNAL, page 16, has an article in which the GHQ Far East Command, praises Service families in the Pacific area for their high morale and good spirits during the Korean crisis, and then has an item on page 6 that says that dependents who traveled to the Pacific area at their own expense, will not be reimbursed for travel expenses unless their travel was authorized by CNO.

Those of us who followed our husbands to the Pacific area did not have time to try to get authorization, nor did we even think such authorization would be allowed—we came because we know from the past how cruel and long separation and war is and how little time we might have with our husbands. We knew also how it helps our men to have their families near.

We have been no burden on the Services, we have asked and received no favors, and perhaps in some little way, we have been of some help to the war effort.

We ask only that the above facts be kept in mind when deciding whether we're entitled to any travel reimbursements.

Can you do anything about steering these facts into the correct channels for consideration?

A Service Wife

AF Promotion By Merit

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In applying the criteria designed to provide "fair and equitable consideration" for active Air Force Officers regarding temporary promotions, I observe that I fail to qualify by one week. I also observe that an officer whose initial appointment was later than mine by more than a year, who has less active service in grade than I by more than three years and who has less total service in grade is able to qualify.

I know of nothing which can have an adverse effect upon morale equal to that of a wholesale pass-over by officers of less service.

If there is to be promotion by merit, let there be promotion by merit; but if there is to be promotion for service, then let each day of service count. Any other way becomes promotion by chance.

Dependent Care

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

No other publication has given such continuous and sympathetic attention to the problem of medical care for men of the Armed Forces and their families. Your news articles and editorials doubtless have done much to make certain that servicemen and their dependents are not "gypped" by foolish medical economies.

There is no intention on the part of the Secretary of the Navy to take the insignia of wings away from the aviators. Recommendation to do so was recently made by the Bureau of Navigation, the purpose being to avoid a distinction of this character for a special branch of the Navy. The aviators protested vigorously against the removal of the emblems, finding in them a source of pride and a recognition which they held the kind of service they rendered justified. The department is in accord with the view of the aviators, and the recommendation of the bureau will be disregarded.

The United States took complete possession of Manila Bay on the first of May 1898, but at this date of undisputed possession, there has been utterly nothing done towards the fortification of this place. The whole temper of the disbanding Army has been peaceful. Mexico lay, a tempting prize for adventurers, a rich field for glory and spoils. Our Army marched 100,000 strong to the very brink of the Rubicon, there paused, and the major part of it was faced about and marched quietly homeward. No, we have little fear that the military spirit which was aroused in this country by war, is hostile either to Republicanism or to tranquility.

It takes skill to produce OLD GRAND-DAD

Nature supplies the ingredients, but it takes rare distilling skill to produce so artistic an achievement as mellow, heart-warming Old Grand-Dad. Your first taste will tell you how fine and smooth a choice Kentucky bourbon Old Grand-Dad is—and why it qualifies as Head of the Bourbon Family.

LOCKHEED'S F-94-C...TIMED FOR DEFENSE

Like many another U. S. weapon for defense these days, the Air Force's new Lockheed jet fighter, the F-94-C, is too good to be talked about. You'll know this plane by the thrust of its speed, the sound of its power, and its purple-blue exhaust as it streaks through the night or through the roughest weather.

But beyond this physical impact of the new F-94-C thin-wing Jet, there is not much you can know about the airplane. It has more of everything—versatility, maneuverability, stability, etc.—but it's so good it's secret.

It took more time, more skill and more ingenuity to build the F-94-C than its distant World War II cousins. Good as they were, World War II airplanes were not the complicated package of speed, electronic intelligence and firepower found in the F-94-C. Nor did they require the years and years spent in the development of men, machines and materials now needed to build an airplane for defense.

It takes more and more time and planning to build an airplane, and the new F-94-C was timed years ago—for today's defense.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The Soviet government this week protested that two American F-80 jet fighter planes had attacked a Russian airfield 60 miles north of the Korean border, and only 40 miles south of Vladivostok. The attack is alleged to have taken place on 8 Oct., and to have damaged installations. No mention is made of casualties having been inflicted.

The Russian complaint was contained in a note sent to the American embassy at Moscow, which declined to receive it on the ground that it should have been presented to the United Nations, inasmuch as Korean military operations are the responsibility of the world organization. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko rejected this contention as groundless, insisting that since only American planes were involved the United States must assume the responsibility. The Soviet government demands that those responsible for the violation of Russian territory be punished.

If such a violation took place it is probable that the United States would express its regret and pay appropriate indemnity, but it is insistent that the matter be handled through the United Nations. This stand is consistent with that taken in connection with previous protests by Red China that American planes had inflicted casualties and damaged property in Manchurian villages bordering on Korea.

The powerful political committee of the General Assembly of the United Nations this week agreed to a general debate of the American resolution to strengthen the authority of the veto-free General Assembly. The effect of the proposal would be to make it possible to bypass the Security Council in an emergency in order to deal promptly with aggression, and thus avoid the consequences of a veto by one of the permanent members of the Council.

In speaking for the American resolution, Mr. John Foster Dulles, of the United States delegation, pointed out that the Security Council was able to deal promptly with the Korean crisis only because of the fortuitous circumstance that Russia for some months had boycotted the meetings of the Council, and therefore was not present to interpose a veto of the action taken. Mr. Dulles said it was also fortunate that the United States, incident to its occupation duties in Japan, had land, sea and air forces in the Far East, available for immediate use in countering aggression in Korea.

The American proposal envisages a broad program for dealing with aggression, including provision for calling emergency sessions on 24 hours' notice, a Peace Observation Commission to observe and report on any area of tension, the designation by each member country of military units to assist the United Nations in restoring peace anywhere at the request of either the Security Council or the General Assembly, and the formation of a committee to survey all methods and resources, including armed forces, available to the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinski surprised the committee by announcing that his country favored some of the points of the resolution. However, he said that it opposed the general tendency of the proposal. Despite expected Russian opposition it is expected that the entire program for strengthening the General Assembly, with only minor changes, will be adopted.

The General Assembly on 7 Oct., by the overwhelming vote of 47 to 5, with 8 abstentions adopted a resolution to pacify all Korea, to arrange for elections and to rehabilitate the country. The resolution gave tacit approval to the extension of United Nations military operations into North Korea. Only the Soviet bloc voted against the resolution, while India and the Arab League countries abstained from voting.

Under the resolution a new United Nations Commission, composed of representatives of Australia, the Philippines, Pakistan, Thailand, the Netherlands, Turkey and Chile, has been designated to supervise the unification, relief and rehabilitation of all of Korea. The resolution further provides that "all appropriate steps be taken to ensure stability throughout Korea," and that United Nations forces should not remain in any part of Korea longer than necessary to achieve stability, and to establish "a unified, independent and democratic government."

It is clear that if the troops of General Douglas MacArthur did not previously have the authority to cross the 38th parallel into North Korea this resolution gives it to them, since it specifically refers to "stability throughout Korea" and pledges that United Nations troops shall not remain "in any part of Korea" longer than necessary to achieve assigned missions.

It is noteworthy that General MacArthur refrained from sending any non-Korean troops across the line until the resolution was adopted. In his surrender demand on North Korea the general referred to this resolution, and United Nations planes dropped millions of copies in enemy territory.

Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb has informed the Austrian government that the United States will not permit Communist rioters to disrupt government processes in Austria. The communication was dispatched following the complete failure of Red demonstrations in Vienna. The well-advertised Communist uprising was to have been staged ostensibly in protest against increased prices, without compensatory wage raises. Its real purpose was to demonstrate Communist solidarity and to terrorize the government. Its failure makes it clear that any Red revolution in Austria cannot succeed, without the strong support of Russian military forces.

French troops in Indo-China have suffered severe, possibly disastrous, reverses in hard fighting with Communist guerrillas, who attacked in unexpected strength and cut off and surrounded some of the best French troops in Indo-China. Several small outposts fell to the Communists. There were at least 3,000 French casualties. The Red troops are reported to have been trained and equipped in China. This eruption may indicate that Indo-China will succeed Korea as an Asiatic trouble spot.

International Civil Aviation Organization—Rear Adm. Paul A. Smith, USCGS, has been elected first vice president of the International Civil Aviation Organization, according to an announcement by Dr. Edward Warner, President of the Council, at the ICAO offices in Montreal. Rear Admiral Smith was also elected a member of the ICAO Committee on Joint Support for Air Navigation Services.

Other United States members elected to Committees were: Mr. Claude H. Smith to Air Navigation Commission, and Mr. N. Seagrave to the Air Transport Committee.

Hands Across the U. N.—Families of British soldiers killed in the recent bombing tragedy in Korea will receive a token of sympathy and condolence from personnel of Castle AFB, Calif. A check for $382.85 has been sent by Col. Charles W. Bicking to Lt. Gen. Sir Gordon MacMillen, Colonel-in-chief of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlander regiment, the unit whose troops were accidentally bombed by American aircraft.

Service personnel and civilians at Castle made a spontaneous contribution to be sent to the families of the British "Tommies" killed. "We feel very deeply for the families of these soldiers," Colonel Bicking said, "and we at Castle have taken this means of expressing our profound sorrow to their loved ones."

The colonel said the servicemen and civilians of that Superfortress station may feel a little closer to the British than the average citizen, as the tactical group normally stationed there has been in England for the last 10 weeks in training operations. "It is our desire," Colonel Bicking added, "that this remembrance from the servicemen of this station be received as a token of the feelings we as individuals hold toward the individual soldiers of our allies."

Navy Chaplain Wounded—Lt. R. A. Bonner, ChC, USN, 11th Marines, received injuries on 27 Sept. when the jeep in which he was riding ran over a land mine near Seoul, Korea. The resulting explosion inflicted second and third degree burns on his face, lacerations on his wrists, and for a short time impaired hearing. Within three hours after the accident he was received at the Division Hospital Aid Station. By that time his hearing was returning. The doctors attending him gave assurance that his burns were not serious.

Within twenty minutes after he arrived at the Aid Station he was air-evacuated to Fukuoka, Japan.

Star for Top Budget Aide—The Army this week announced the promotion of Col. Robert S. Moore, GSC, to the rank of brigadier general, which he will hold while serving as Special Assistant to the Comptroller, Department of Defense. A veteran Army budget officer with 33 years of service, General Moore attains his new rank as a result of a specific provision in the Supplemental Appropriations Act for fiscal year 1951, signed by the President on 27 Sept. His promotion was made effective 5 Oct. The legislation stipulates that the officer who holds assignment as Special Assistant to the Comptroller will have the rank of brigadier general.

Entering the Army as an enlisted man, General Moore was commissioned as a second lieutenant in France in World War I, during which he served with the 5th and 27th Divisions, being wounded in action in October, 1918, in the Somme Offensive while attached to the latter division.

General Moore transferred from the Infantry to the Finance Department in 1929. He is a graduate of the Signal School, Finance School, Infantry School and Industrial College. Except for the period from 1939 to 1940, when he was Deputy Finance Officer, U. S. Army, Brooklyn, N. Y., he has filled key budget billets in Washington. Prior to January when he became Special Assistant to the Department of Defense Comptroller, Assistant Secretary W. J. McNeill, General Moore was assistant to the head of the Army Budget Division, and in this post appeared many times before Congressional appropriations committees. He is considered one of the outstanding experts on military budgets in the Armed Forces today.

The "spot" promotion of General Moore is the first of its kind in several years. The last similar promotion resulted from passage of P.L. 777 by the 80th Congress, which provided that the chief of Civil Works of the Corps of Engineers should hold one-star rank. The proviso in the Supplemental Appropriations legislation directing that the Special Assistant to the Department of Defense Comptroller should have general officer rank reflects the increasing importance Congress attaches to the activities of Assistant Secretary McNeill's office, responsible for the development and coordination of the overall budget for the Armed Forces.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Rear Adm. Bertram Groesbeck, Jr., MC, USN, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery for Aviation and Operational Medicine, will represent the Surgeon General of the Navy, Rear Adm. C. A. Swanson, at a meeting of the World Medical Association to be held on 19 Oct. at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City. The World Medical Association is an association of the representative national medical associations in each of 42 countries.

Signal Corps—Two Signal Corps officers have reported to the Chief Signal Officer for duty. They are: Col. Amory V. Elliot, Special Assignment Group (Boards and Committees), and Maj. Willard A. Muir, Procurement and Distribution Division. Lt. Col. Wesley C. Franklin, Signal Corps, has been assigned Division Signal Officer, 4th Infantry Division, Fort Benning, Ga.

Korean Campaign Ribbon—The President is expected soon after his return from the Pacific meeting with General of the Army Douglas MacArthur to issue an Executive Order creating a Korean Campaign Ribbon. This week, it was reported that the Order was being prepared and coordinated by Government agencies outside the Department of Defense. Presumably, the Department of Justice would be concerned in the actual drafting of the Order and also the State Department.

The basic color of the ribbon is said to be of a hue described as United Nations blue. The ribbon reportedly has white trimming at either end and in the middle.

Some criticism has been heard regarding the delay in authorizing the Korean ribbon for wear. It has been pointed out that hundreds of servicemen wounded in action have been returned to the United States and would want to wear the ribbon as soon as possible to denote their recent service in combat. The delay in no way can be charged to the Army, responsible for development of the ribbon, for a design was submitted to the Secretary of the Army and approved by him weeks ago.

300,000th Patient—Army Medical Center's 300,000th Walter Reed Army Hospital patient, a Korean combat casualty, is PFC Jack D. Hall, who was admitted to the hospital 7 Oct.

Walter Reed Hospital's first patient was Mr. Homer E. Greenfield, now of Chevy Chase, Md., who was admitted to the hospital on an emergency out-patient basis just prior to the hospital's opening on 9 May 1909, under the command of Col. William H. Arthur, MC.

Today, as a component of the Army Medical Center, Walter Reed AH has an authorized bed capacity of 1,747, with slightly over 2,000 patients on the hospital rolls. Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit is the Commanding General of the Army Medical Center.

Transportation Corps—Lt. Col. F. K. Kendall has been assigned to serve as Deputy Director, Southeastern Region, Army Railway Operations Office at Ft. Eustis, Va. He replaces Lt. Col. Alton A. Hill, who has been assigned as a member of the staff and faculty of The Transportation School at Fort Eustis.

In civilian life Colonel Kendall, a reserve officer called to active duty in the Transportation Corps, has been serving as terminal supervisor for the Reading Company. He has been granted a furlough by the railway company during the present military emergency.

Bathtub is Fire Victim—The first bathtub installed on the island of Ponape in the Eastern Caroline Islands of the Pacific has been destroyed by fire. The fire leveled the quarters occupied by Lt. Comdr. Louis H. Hanthorn, USNR, Civil Administrator of Ponape.

Air Force Dental Service—Lt. Col. Richard J. Burch, Chanute AFB, Ill., is attending a 90-day course in surgical procedures conducted by the Department of Oral Surgery, W. K. Kellogg Foundation Institute, University of Michigan. Lt. Col. Hubert B. Palmer has reported to the University of Maryland for postgraduate training in Dental Research. He previously was assigned to Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C. as Chief of the Dental Research Department of the Army Medical Department Research and Graduate School. Maj. John P. Kane has reported to Georgetown University, Washington, D. C. for postgraduate course in Oral Surgery.

National Guard Conference—Originally slated for Houston, Tex., 27-30 Oct., but cancelled because of the Korean emergency, the 72d General Conference of the National Guard Association will be held in "streamlined" form 23-25 Oct. in Washington, D. C. Attendance is to be limited to 30 per cent of the authorized delegates.

Included among the speakers who will address the sessions are Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, jr., and Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter. General J. Lawton Collins, USA Chief of Staff, is scheduled to head the list of military speakers.

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE U. S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., will be host to Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder today, 14 Oct., in observance of the Academy's annual "Secretary's Day." He will be accompanied by Vice Adm. Merlin O'Neill, Commandant of the Coast Guard, Washington, D. C.

Events of the day include an inspection of the grounds and facilities, luncheon with the Corps in the Cadet mess hall, attendance at the Academy-Wesleyan University football game on Jones Field, and conferences with Academy faculty members and cadet class officers. In addition, Secretary Snyder will speak briefly over a national (NBC) radio network program which originates weekly from New London and features the Academy Band.

In the evening, the visitors will be dinner guests of the Superintendent, Rear Adm. Arthur G. Hall, and Mrs. Hall.

Ryukyus Command

bat ground troops and to man the necessary guard details for protection of supplies and property of the occupation forces. Responsibility for providing anti-aircraft protection is invested in the 97th AAA Group.

The 20th Air Force, under Maj. Gen. Ralph F. Stearley, is supported by these ground troops, enabling the air force to use this island as an important base of operations in the Far East.

Brig. Gen. John H. Hinds, Deputy Military Governor, exercises direct supervision of the eight major departments of Military Government and is chairman of Military Government's Planning Board. The government of the Ryukyu Islands operates through five Military Government teams, four of which work in conjunction with local civil administrations in the island areas of Amami, Oshima, Yaeyama, Miyako and Okinawa, while a fifth team supervises all activities of Ryukyuan-wide scope, including liaison with a native eleven-member advisory group called the Interim Advisory Council.

A milestone in the Military Government program will be the first free democratic election in Ryukyuan history, to be held in September and October throughout the Ryukyu Islands for the election of area governors and assemblymen and local mayors and assemblymen in cities, towns and villages.

In addition to its efforts in raising the Ryukyuan economy to pre-war standards, the Military Government has sponsored a general reorientation program and has carried out a widespread plan to raise health standards.

Okinawa today presents other visual evidence of great progress from the utterly devastated island which the Army took over five years ago. Civilian and military buses ply the roads carrying military, civilian and native personnel, and there are electric stop and go signals to control traffic flow. The water supply is no longer subject to those long periods of "shut-off because of emergency work or lack of pressure." A large communication system is now in full operation under Signal units for radio and telephone communication within the Ryukyus, enabling a phone call to a person forty or fifty miles away in a matter of seconds. Commercial long distance lines on Okinawa reach to almost any area in the world.

Regular army medical facilities, including the RYCOM Army Hospital, are operating for the use of occupational personnel, and in addition, civilian medical services including a medical and dental clinic, optical shops and drug store are being made available.

For the convenience and recreational needs of occupational personnel, a chain of restaurants, clothing shops and many commercial services have been established by private concerns. Theaters, athletic fields, golf courses, beaches, rest centers, service clubs and other military and civilian clubs are scattered throughout the various installations on the Islands.

The job in the Ryukyu Islands of building an adequate armed forces establishment and a stable local government and economy for the native people is far from completion. There is a great deal to be done before we reach the goals set for us. But in spite of the destruction wrought by the battle of Okinawa, the damage caused by serious yearly typhoons, and the logistical and communications problems induced by the great distances between the far-flung islands of the group, the nearly one million people of the Ryukyu Islands are confidently emerging from debilitating chaos to healthy stability. Concurrently, the military establishment has become an efficiently functioning organization. With the continued cooperation of armed forces and civilian personnel and the people of the Ryukyu Islands, there is no doubt that these islands will stand as a proud example of United States Occupation Policy and Armed Forces unity.

MRS. Thomas K. Finletter, wife of the Secretary of the Air Force, recently back from a Summer in Bar Harbor, and Mrs. John McCone, wife of the Under Secretary of the Air Force, were guests of the members of the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club yesterday, 13 Oct., at the Sully Club at a fashion show and tea. Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, wife of the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, and honorary president of the club, welcomed the guests.

Mrs. Vandenberg was also a guest at the reception given Saturday last by Mrs. Leigh Wade, wife of the U.S. Air Force attache in Athens, in honor of the Greek Ambassador, Mr. Anthanasios Politis, and Air Vice Marshal Haralambos Potamianos, inspector general of the Greek Air Force.

Mrs. Wade, who is shortly returning to Greece, received the more than two hundred guests in a modish gown of black taffeta, and was assisted by her sisters, Mrs. James O'Donnell Moran, Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. Stephen Burke and Mrs. Oswald Schuette.

Among the guests were Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Alfred M. Gruenther, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Ewald Edwards, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Douglas A. Weart, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James Newman, Gen. and Mrs. M. Moore, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Henry Saylor, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Lyons, Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, Admiral and Mrs. Walter Moore, Col. and Mrs. Harvey Smith and others.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, and Mrs. Sherman are entertaining at dinner Monday evening, 16 Oct., in honor of the Commander in Chief of the Chilean Navy, Vice Admiral Carlos Torres, who is to arrive in Washington that day.

He will be accompanied by Capt. Jose Araoz, Comdr. Harman Searle, and Lt. Comdr. Rinaldo Reopke.

The following day, Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews will be host at a luncheon at the Pentagon for the Chilean visitors, and Rear Admiral Milton E. Miles, Director of Pan American in the Heart of the Health Country

Thriving, bustling, friendly Albuquerque is full of folks who have settled down to live here where the climate is mild and pleasant every month in the year and where the sun shines 76% of the total possible time the year around. Some of these folks are retired from more active life, some have youngsters who need a climate advantage while they attend the excellent schools and University here, some came for health reasons, and many came just because they like Albuquerque and our climate better than any place they have ever found.

Our new booklet, packed with facts and photographs, tells why you'll like Albuquerque, too. Mail the coupon today for your free copy.

Mrs. Herman Feldman, wife of the Quartermaster General of the Army, presided at the luncheon of the Officers' Wives' Club of the Quartermaster Corps, 11 Oct., at Fort McNair. The speaker was Mrs. Leslie Clark Stevens, wife of the Naval Attache at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, who returned to this country last winter after three years in Russia.

She and Rear Admiral Stevens were also in Russia in 1936 and her talk was on contrasting conditions then and now.

This luncheon, the first of the season for this group, was the occasion for signing up members to meet every Thursday morning at Gregory Hall to make hand-made articles for the Christmas bazaar, which will be held 7 & 8 of December for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club. At last year's sale, $1500 was made with which the women equipped the recreation room at the Service men's club, and are hoping to add extra equipment this year.

Col. and Mrs. Arnold H. Rich and young son, Chris, have returned to Montgomery, Ala., to make their home. Colonel Rich was stationed at Maxwell Field from 1931 through 1938. He and Mrs. Rich are renewing old friendships and are at home at 32D, The Prado, Montgomery.

San Diego State College, Calif., has recently initiated three adults as distinguished members of fraternities; Theta Chi has as honorary members Admiral Frederick C. Sherman and General Maurice J. Holmes, M.C.; Mrs. William R. (Mary) Stewart, wife of Col. Wm. R. Stewart, and mother of Capt. Wm. R. Stewart, Jr., was made a patroness life member of Sigma Alpha Iota, international honorary fraternity in the field of music. Mrs. Stewart has for two years been president of Theta Chi Mothers' Club.

The wives of the officers of the Army Medical Service, Washington, D. C., Area held their first monthly luncheon of the season, 4 Oct., at the Army Medical Center Officers' Club. Mrs. P. H. Streit presided. A very enjoyable hour was spent before the luncheon getting acquainted with the many new ladies who have arrived in this area during the summer months.

Following the luncheon, bridge, bingo and poker were played. The winners were: Bridge: Mrs. W. C. Dunkel, Mrs. David Peifly and Mrs. H. E. Puckett. Bingo: Mrs. S. K. Avery, Mrs. R. E. Watson, Mrs. P. C. Templer. Poker: Mrs. P. H. Streit, Mrs. Austin Lowery and Mrs. J. U. Weaver.

Kuitert, Poker: Mrs. Henry Vedder, Bridge: Mrs. John Caldwell, Publicity: Mrs. Bernard Riordan.

The wives of the Ordnance Corps officers met recently at the Army & Navy Country Club for a luncheon and program. The purpose of the meeting was to create interest in the Women's Army and Navy League of Washington, D. C., and to form a "doers group" of Ordnance women.

A receiving line composed of Mrs. Ada Wald, Mrs. Everett Hughes, Mrs. Jonathan Holman and Mrs. Emerson Cummings greeted the guests. Mrs. Edward Bodeau, Ordnance representative, presided at the meeting. After outlining plans of the Ordnance Corps in relation to the Women's Army and Navy League and other program work, Mrs. Bodeau introduced the Ordnance Planning Committee, composed of Mrs. Ada Wald, Mrs. Earl Gurver, Mrs. Everett Hughes, Mrs. William Sadtler, Mrs. Emerson Cummings, Mrs. Holger Toftoy, Mrs. George Rogers and Mrs. Kelly Lewis.

Mrs. Homer Case, president of the Women's Army and Navy League of Washington, spoke of the work conducted by the League at the Soldiers', Sailors', Marine and Airmen's Home, and outlined the history of the League.

The Ordnance Corps has pledged a bed to the Home, and on 11 Oct., at the homes of Mrs. Everett Hughes, wife of Major General Hughes and Mrs. Jonathan Holman, wife of Brigadier General Holman, twin silver teas were held. Mrs. George Rogers was general chairman of the teas with Mrs. Richard Crane and Mrs. Benjamin Mesick acting as sub-chairmen. Mrs. Emerson Cummings and Mrs. Frederick Crabb were in charge of the invitations. Mrs. Ada Wald, sister of Maj. Gen. Elbert L. Ford, Chief of Ordnance, and Mrs. Edward Bodeau, general chairman of the Ordnance Women's Activities, were in attendance at both teas, spending a short time at each home.

Pouring at Mrs. Hughes' home were Mrs. Alfred B. Quinton, Jr., wife of Major General Quinton; Mrs. Leslie E. Simon, wife of Brigadier General Simon, and Mrs. Earl Gruver, wife of Colonel Gruver. Mrs. William O'Neal was assistant hostess. At the tea table at Mrs. Holman's home were Mrs. John K. Christmas, Mrs. Emerson Cummings, wife of Brigadier General Cummings; Mrs. W. H. Tschappat, wife of Major General Tschappat. Helping receive the guests was Mrs. William Durbenberger.

their daughter, Gloria, to Maj. Raymond S. Isenson, USA, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Isenson, also of Chicago. Major Isenson and his bride will be at home at 3717 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., after their marriage, 23 Dec.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack M. Hawkins, DC, USAF, of Eglin AFB, Fla., announce the marriage of their daughter, Jacqueline Hawkins Pinkerton, to Lt. Comdr. Richard Street White, III, USN, on 18 June.

Mrs. White is the widow of Capt. Charles C. Pinkerton, Jr., USAF, of the West Point class of January 1943.

The bride attended schools in Honolulu, Santa Barbara, and John Muir College in Pasadena, Calif.

Commander White is the son of Mrs. R. S. White of Elizabethtown, N. C., and the late R. S. White. He attended the University of North Carolina where he was elected to the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa during his junior year. He entered the U.S. Naval Academy in 1939 and was graduated in June 1942 with the class of 1943. He is on the staff of Rear Adm. Thomas H. Binford, Commander, Cruiser Division One.

The couple spent a short honeymoon in Honolulu before returning to the west coast for a short period. Commander White is on a tour of sea duty in the Pacific area and Mrs. White plans to return to Florida to attend the State University at Tallahassee.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem McGinness of Evansville, Ind., announce the marriage of their daughter Esther to Lt. Carey L. Lackey, Jr., son of Mrs. Ruby P. Lackey of Uvalde, Tex., and Mr. Carey L. Lackey, sr., of Lometa, Tex., on 22 July.

The bride was given in marriage by her father at the ceremony in Northside Baptist Church, San Antonio, Tex. A reception was given in the home of the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Blanche Vaden, Castroville, Tex.

The bride is a graduate of Indiana School of Medicine and completed her internship at Philadelphia General Hospital. She is a member of A.O.A.

The young couple are at home at 151 West Bay View Drive, Biloxi, Miss. Lieutenant Lackey is attending the Officers' Electronics School at Keesler AFB.

The wedding of Miss Virginia Lee Browne, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Allan R. Browne of Arlington, Va., to Mr. Robert Carl Mount, son of Mrs. Susan Mount of Columbia, Mo., took place at the First Christian Church at Sedalia, Mo., 7 Oct.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin designed with an illusion yoke, fitted bodice embroidered with seed pearls and a full skirt forming a train. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a Victorian bouquet of gardenias. The maid of honor was Miss Carol Longan Browne and the other attendants were Miss Carolyn Collins of Lamar, Mo., and Miss Phyllis Browne of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Robert C. Damon of Kansas City was best man.

After a short southern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Mount will be at home at 902 W. Broadway, Sedalia.

Miss Kathleen Tankersley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tankersley of Oak Grove, Ky., and 2d Lt. Henry H. Debolt, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Debolt of Sacramento, Calif., were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed 5 Oct. by Chaplain (Maj.) Luther G. H. Schlusser in Chapel No. 7, Fort Campbell, Ky.

For her wedding, the bride chose a traditional ivory satin gown, slightly entrain, fashioned with a full skirt and a long sleeve basque type jacket with seed pearl trim. Her fingertip veil of bride's illusion fell from a heart-shaped tiara, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias.

The bride's matron of honor was Mrs. Zarthan Martin of Woodlawn, Tenn. Lt. Donald Olson acted as Lieutenant Debolt's best man.

Lieutenant Debolt is assigned to Headquarters Company, 11th Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, where he is Assistant Post Signal Officer. Following the ceremony, Lieutenant and Mrs. Debolt left on a short wedding trip. When they return they plan to live in Oak Grove.

Miss Marion Barnes, daughter of Colonel Barnes, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Barnes of St. Louis, Mo., and 2d Lt. Phillip E. Nicolay, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Nicolay, also of St. Louis, were married 6 Oct. at Fort Campbell, Ky. Chaplain (Capt.) Fred J. Jewell performed the single ring ceremony.

The bride wore a two-piece aqua plaid suit with contrasting accessories. Her matron of honor was Mrs. Kenneth Murphy of Clarksville, Tenn.; 2d Lt. J. O. Barnes of the Medical Company, 511th Airborne Infantry Regiment, Fort Campbell, was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by Lt. Kenneth E. Murphy of Company H, 511th Airborne Infantry Regiment, Fort Campbell, Ky.

Miss Barnes was graduated from Milwaukee-Dawner College, Milwaukee, Wis., June 1950 with a bachelor of science degree in occupational therapy. Lieutenant Nicolay, who is assigned to Company E, 511th Airborne Infantry Regiment, was a member of the 1950 class of the U.S. Military Academy. Lieutenants Murphy and Barnes, members of the wedding party, were also 1950 graduates of the academy.

Following a short wedding trip, Lt. and Mrs. Nicolay will make their home at 607 Central Avenue, Clarksville, Tenn.

WOODWARD & LOTHROP

WASHINGTON 13, D. C.

D. RANDALL BUCKINGHAM
VICE PRESIDENT

Dear Madam:

Woodward & Lothrop, "A Store Worthy of the Nation's Capital," for many years has been taking care of the merchandise needs of American families abroad who do not enjoy the convenience of their customary shopping centers. Due to the great increase in the number of such families, we have reorganized our Personal Shopping Bureau to provide even better service than in the past.

We suggest that you let our experienced and capable shoppers take care of your requirements...outfit your family, equip your home, or do your gift shopping. Just tell us your needs, giving sizes, types, preferred colors and other basic information, and we take over from there.

This service is under the direction of Mrs. Charles Little, who has just come to Washington after five years' residence abroad. She is assisted by a capable staff, familiar with conditions in most overseas areas.

It gives us great pleasure to offer this improved and expanded personal shopping service to you. Whether we have assisted you in the past or you are giving us the opportunity for the first time, we are sure you will be pleased.

Please address your shopping requests to Personal Shopping Bureau.

Sincerely

D. Randall Buckingham

■ EGLIN AFB, FLA. Maj. Gen. Bryant L. Boatner, Commanding General of the Air Proving Ground, formally dedicated Eglin's new football stadium, at the Eglin Eagle-Corry Field football game, 30 Sept.

The huge stadium, comparable to the facilities enjoyed by many colleges, is a major addition to the Air Proving Ground's athletic program. Added features of the field include one of the finest quarter-mile cinder tracks in North Florida, plus a modern press-box, and spacious dressing rooms.

General Boatner, in his short talk, cited Col. J. H. Foster, Group Commander of the 3201st Air Base Group, as having made a major contribution, through his personal endeavor, toward the completion of the new stadium. Colonel Foster, in turn, extended his appreciation to all those who participated in the opening of the football field.

■ NEW ORLEANS, LA. Col. Werner W. Moore, Commanding Officer, New Orleans Port of Embarkation, entertained with a cocktail party at Camp Leroy Johnson 30 Sept. for members of his command and the brother Services in the New Orleans area.

ANNAPOLIS, MD. The members of the Naval Academy Alumni Association from all over the country, and their wives came here last Friday to hold a reunion and reestablish the annual reunion, which was abandoned during World War II. A cocktail party at Bancroft Hall started the festivities on Friday afternoon, followed by a buffet supper. About 1700 attended. On Friday afternoon at 2:30, the members of the class of 1920 presented furnishings for the entrance hall at the Alumni House. The reunion was suggested by Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, Superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. Thomas C. Hart and Rear Adm. and Mrs. G. S. Bryan were guests of Admiral and Mrs. Hill during the weekend.

Lt. Marie Kelleher of Newport, R. I., was the guest of Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Raen. Lt. Kelleher, until this summer, was Public Information Officer at the Naval Academy. Mrs. James A. Logan, widow of Rear Adm. Logan, has gone to Charleston to spend a month. Later she will motor to Coronado, Calif., where she expects to make her home. Capt. and Mrs. Roy Dudley were visitors here over the weekend, having come for the Alumni reunion and to attend the Navy-Northwestern football game in Baltimore.

CASTLE AFB, CALIF. A tinted photo of Brig. Gen. Frederick W. Castle, World War II hero for whom Castle AFB is named, is en route to Bury St. Edmunds, England, where it will hang in the city hall.

Officials of the city had asked General Castle's father, Col. Benjamin Castle, for a portrait of the late bomber pilot. The Castles asked Colonel Bickling if he could furnish a photographic copy of General Castle's portrait which hangs in the Officers' Club. The copy was made and oil tinted by S/Sgt. William Goodwin of the Base Photo Lab.

WEST POINT, N. Y. The West Point Chapter of Daughters of the United States Army was reactivated recently at the Lusk quarters of Mrs. Frederick R. Weber, who was elected president, with Beatrice Crigger Dunham, vice president, Mary Lou Heavey Hartman, treasurer and Peggy Vachon Light, secretary. A program of individual support to Post activities and charities, such as the Altar Guild, Brownies and Scouts, Red Cross, Thrift Shop and the newly organized Child Care Center through the fall football season was decided upon.

The January meeting at 3 P. M. on the second Friday will be held at the home of Mrs. Hartman, Quarters 14, with the newly elected officers as hosts, to plan a Children's Spring Benefit Fashion Show under the chairmanship of Barbara Thompson Elsenhower.

Among the Army Daughters, whose husbands are presently stationed at the U. S.

Military Academy are Mary Dannemiller Todd, Pat Casey Clay, Ramona Kerr Sussman, Nancy Forsythe Russell, Peggy Vachon Light, Polly Perichett Roberts, Barbara Thompson Elsenhower, Kathleen Conrad Heinlein, Louise Marshall Brain, Dutch Hartman, Betty Watson Bixby, Kate Kingman Weber, Beatrice Crigger Dunham, Betty Galtner Ocho, Pat Westover Frudenthal, Laurie Shute Spaulding, Beatrice Patton Waters, Anne Jones Phillips, Harriet Howze Jones, Polly Weeks Holton, Linda Erwin Tisdale, Kitty Crittendenberger, Betty Rhodes Baldwin, Betty Younger Tuck, Jane Love Brownlow, Martha Ingle Schrader and Mrs. J. B. Stephens and Miss Grace Harrington.

The Junior Section, daughters of officers stationed at West Point, elected D'Arcy Stephens president; Joan Gard, vice-president; Dorothy Bower, secretary; George Anne Smith, treasurer. This section includes Anne Howze, Nancy McKinney, Betty Triplett, Sally Alspach, Shirley Taylor, Lois Morlock, Jane Morrow, Kitty Nicholas, Ann Reeder, Anne Carroll Touchstone. Their 12 October meeting was held in the evening at the home of their president, D'Arcy Stephens.

FORT McPHERSON, GA. Wives of soldiers play an important part in the success of an Army. Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commanding General, Third Army, told members of the Ft. McPherson Woman's Club at the opening of the fall and winter club season. The wives of the soldiers, he said, must share the hardships with their husbands, moving about from post to post on short notice, and often being separated for long periods of time.

"Duty frequently calls a soldier away from his wife and family," General Hodge said, "and on short notice, leaving behind a whole host of problems. Other wives on the Post should and do immediately go to the assistance of such a family, advising them and helping out in just a whole lot of ways."

"During World War I, and shortly after my wife and I were married, we were separated for nearly two years, and again during World War II, we were separated again for seven years. In situations like these, the wives should band together and should help the soldier who is out in the field. It's the kind of thing he needs to keep his morale high."

General Hodge was introduced to the gathering by Mrs. Wilbur H. Vinson, wife of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Third Army. Mrs. Herbert J. McChrystal, club president, presided over the meeting at Ft. McPherson Officers' Mess, which was attended by some 200 Army wives.

FORT BENNING, GA. The Woman's club opened its 27th consecutive year last week with a meeting and tea. Mrs. Allen Peck, president, presided and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Loren Jenks, post chaplain, pronounced the invocation. Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burrell, commander of the Infantry Center, was guest speaker.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edwin C. Lee entertained recently with a barbecue at their quarters on Wickersham avenue. Guests were Col. and Mrs. G. E. Bush, Brig. E. W. D. Western, Mrs. Armistead Meade, Col. and Mrs. Robert K. McDonough, Col. and Mrs. William McNulty, Lt. Col. Grant Learnard, Mrs. Charles Hallden, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Donald C. Wilson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leo a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Class of 1941. He fought in the Mexican War, where he was breveted, but died soon after of disease incurred during the war.

Mrs. Hardaway was a member of the Colonial Dames, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Army Daughters. In previous years she had been active in club, Red Cross and civic activities in St. Louis.

For some years past, she had resided with her son and daughter-in-law, Brig. Gen. Francis P. Hardaway, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Hardaway, the former Harriet Lane Cates of St. Louis. She had been to Honolulu, twice to Panama, and at other stations in the United States. At the time of her death, she was with her son and daughter-in-law at 427 North Florissant Road, Ferguson, St. Louis County, Missouri. In spite of her age, she commented on the news on the day of her death.

She is also survived by her grandson, John Mullanphy Hardaway of Honolulu, Hawaii; two nieces, Mrs. Julius C. Edwards of Hollywood, California, and Mrs. Philip Bockfinger of Denver, Colorado; and two cousins, Mrs. Alfred Withers and Miss Annie Vandergrift of Gloucester County, Va.

Defense Orders Rated

The priority rating of defense contracts under National Production Authority Regulation No. 2, and authority delegated to the Secretary of Defense by the Administrator of NPA, will begin within the next few days, the Department of Defense Munitions Board announced on 5 Oct.

The Board said that much of the planning necessary to put the rating machinery into operation has been completed so that rating can begin without delay.

Rating of contracts under the NPA regulation will be handled as follows:

Defense orders will be identified as DO orders. Contracting officers of the Army, Navy, and Air Force will assign ratings to the contracts which they issue. All outstanding contracts now in effect and all new contracts will be rated, with the exceptions provided in List A of NPA Regulation No. 2, and the following additional ones specified by the Administrator of NPA:

Direct procurement or contractors' purchase of construction equipment for use in construction in the Zone of Interior; civilian type items for resale in Post Exchanges and Ship Stores; purchases from exclusively retail establishments, except in emergency situations and only for small amounts to prevent imminent stoppage, or procurement of any of the following items: commercial office equipment and supplies; flags, bunting, flag-staffs, pennants, insignia and medals; vending machines, portable household fans; commercial type luggage; barber chairs, card tables; books, maps and periodicals; brooms and mops for household use; and domestic type of dishwashing machinery.

Contracting officers of the three services will, in most cases, automatically issue ratings for contracts already in effect and will notify contractors accordingly. They will assign to prime contractors the right to apply the rating to their subcontracts. While the rating to contracts already in force will be done automatically by contracting officers, the Board suggested that present prime contractors should check with contracting offices to make sure that all their defense contracts which are subject to rating are covered.

In addition, subcontractors should begin immediately to identify those of their contracts which are with prime defense producers, who will have authority to extend the ratings to them.

The following identifying digits will be used in assigning DO ratings: 01, aircraft; 02, guided missiles; 03, ships; 04, tank-automotive; 05, weapons; 06, ammunition; 07, electronic and communication equipment; 08, fuels and lubricants; 09, clothing and equipment; 10, transportation equipment; 11, building supplies and equipment for overseas (Troop) construction; 21, miscellaneous; 22, Department of Defense construction (contract); 98, production equipment for certain contractors.

The Munitions Board emphasized that the ratings will be assigned to prime contractors by contracting offices which issue the contracts. The prime contractors will assign ratings to subcontractors.

The Board also stressed that the rating procedure in no way changes procurement practices. Contracts will be let in the same way that they have in the past, and those seeking contracts will follow the same procedure that they have been following.

Ratings will be issued with a minimum of formality. Each rated contract at the time of issuance will carry the following certification: "By authority of the National Production Authority, rating DO (2 digit program code) is assigned to the deliveries on this purchase order or contract." This will be signed by an official of the contracting office.

INDUSTRY * FINANCE * MARITIME

Implement Production Act

The appointment of Dr. Alan Valentine, former president of Rochester University, as head of the new Economic Stabilization Administration, indicates that the Government is preparing the machinery to initiate price and wage controls, should they become necessary.

Under the recently enacted Defense Production Act the President has authority to impose such controls if they are needed to prevent inflation. While the administration is frankly worried over general price advances, which are reflected in widespread demands for wage increases, there is still hope in responsible quarters that arbitrary freezing of prices and wages may be avoided.

Nevertheless, the Director of Economic Stabilization will be authorized to make plans to meet any emergency that may arise. Under his direction there will be a price control director and a wage stabilization board. Through voluntary action of industry and labor efforts will be made to prevent prices and wages from increasing to an extent that would jeopardize the national economy. If voluntary action fails to produce satisfactory results compulsory measures will be taken.

It is possible that the organization of the new office will result in requests for new legislation to provide more flexibility in gearing the national economy to the requirements of national security. Although production of military items under the expanded defense program has scarcely begun bottlenecks are already developing, indicating the necessity for some curtailment of civilian needs.

However, no general rationing program is in prospect, unless there should be a marked deterioration in the international situation. Military requirements will be met through production priorities and allocations, and civilian buying will be further curbed, if necessary, by more drastic control of consumer credit. No food scarcity is in sight, so there will be no rationing of ordinary farm products.

Aid Service Transportation

Inauguration of a program to assist the Armed Forces in the utilization of the transportation skills of members of the National Defense Transportation Association in case of an emergency, has been announced by Mr. Harry F. Chaddick, of Chicago, Association president.

Mr. Chaddick said that a Committee from the NDTA had been working for some months with members of a liaison committee from the Armed Forces in developing a questionnaire which would permit members to furnish information as to their past experience and training. On the basis of these questionnaires, a roster of transportation experts will be maintained at local Chapters. A duplicate roster will be maintained at the National Headquarters of the Association in Washington.

Advertisers in the Army Navy Air Force Journal support the Armed Forces and are familiar with their requirements.

Defense Cargo Ships

Sea transport logistics have been gravely affected since the end of World War II by various military factors, and while much has been done in the development of tanker design to meet modern conditions, there is a vital need now to produce dry cargo vessels that can "move stuff in a hurry and with security, capable of carrying bullets and beef for soldiers," according to Vice Adm. Edward L. Cochran, Maritime Administrator.

Speaking before the American Merchant Marine Conference luncheon held in Baltimore at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in conjunction with the annual Propeller Club Convention, Admiral Cochran recently declared that the current international unrest affects adversely any planning for passenger-ship construction, adding that because we have had to take the four passenger liners now building for early conversion to troopships, it is clear evidence of the difficulty of predicting what class of passengers we should design to accommodate in 1952.

The ship which the Maritime Administration is proposing, continued the Administrator, is moderately larger and faster than the Schuyler Otis Bland, the prototype which is building at Pascagoula. He added that the new design will minimize the use of critical materials so that multiple construction in the event of full mobilization will not make unacceptable demands upon the nation's stockpiles of such materials, while at the same time it will help to augment the rate of flow through the logistic "pipeline," thus reducing the volume of critical materials that must be at sea to assure the supplies needed at the beachheads.

The National Defense cargo ship is a development of the design which was distributed among the shipbuilding and ship operating companies some few months ago.

Plans for the new vessel call for interchangeability of parts. While Admiral Cochran did not state how many units the Administration expected to have constructed, it may be recalled from earlier reports that upwards of 50 ships would be built. The new cargo vessel will be about 525 feet long and have approximately 12,000 deadweight tons capacity, thus capable of carrying two and one-half times as much cargo per year as the Liberty of World War II, it was noted. Admiral Cochran said that he was convinced the proposed design would not be out of line with the needs for replacement vessels by shipping companies as their present ships grow obsolete, adding that the present trend in transportation is the movement of large quantities fast.

Launch President Adams

America's newest luxury ship, the SS President Adams, was launched by the New York Shipbuilding Corporation at Camden, N. J. on 9 Oct.

Built for the American President Lines, the new vessel will temporarily go into the Naval Service.

Under Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball, speaking at the launching, said that "it brings us one step closer to having at hand a fast vessel which we badly need."

He pointed out that "there is a good reason" for the delay in adding the Adams and two sister ships, the Jackson and Hayes, to the American merchant fleet. "These vessels," he said, "may be vital to us in the period that lies ahead."

Major Army Procurement

The Korean situation and the current increase in the size of the Army are responsible for a 500 per cent increase in procurement of certain "major items" for its combat and service troops, the Department of the Army announced this week.

At the same time, MDAP funds which the Army will spend in fiscal year 1951 for Army equipment to be shipped to Atlantic Pact allies have been increased about 400 per cent.

Prior to the conflict in Korea, the Army had intended—in fiscal year 1951—to spend about $312,000,000 for the guns, tanks, ammunition, armored vehicles and other materiel which constitute "major" equipment, and it had requested that sum in its basic budget estimate. However, since the Communist invasion began in Korea this figure has been upped $1,650,000,000 to a total of about $2,000,000,000, the Army said.

This extra $1,650,000,000 is contained in the Supplemental Appropriations Act recently approved by Congress.

It was emphasized that this 500 per cent increase applies only to acquisition of major items, not to Army-wide procurement. From the over-all standpoint, the present Army-wide program appears to involve procurement four to five times greater than the $2,000,000,000 rate of 1950.

As to MDAP procurement, the Army had planned originally to spend about $500,000,000 for this purpose in fiscal year 1951. Now, however, it is estimated that of the funds included in the Supplemental Appropriations Act an additional $2,000,000,000 will be used for procuring Army equipment to fulfill MDAP requirements.

The Army Ordnance Corps, responsible for procuring all Army weapons, ammunition, tanks, trucks, guided missiles and fire control equipment, is currently busiest of the technical services. It is estimated that this Corps alone will spend 57.8 per cent of the total funds to be obligated this fiscal year, including the first supplemental budget and the increased MDAP procurement.

Four of the technical services will spend 91.4 per cent of total funds to be obligated in fiscal year 1951. In addition to Ordnance, these percentages will be spent as follows:

Quartermaster Corps, responsible for procuring food, clothing, bedding and other "soft goods"—15.4 per cent; Corps of Engineers, which procures all construction equipment and materials—11.6 per cent; Signal Corps, responsible for procuring all communications equipment—6.6 per cent.

Much of the money being obligated by the Ordnance Corps is for tanks, tank engines, gun carriages, armored vehicles and similar items.

In addition to scores of other contracts for many items, the Army has entered into contracts with the following companies for the items listed:

Cadillac Division of General Motors Corporation—light tanks.

Continental Motors Corporation—engines for light and medium tanks.

American Car and Foundry Company—105-mm. howitzer motor carriages.

International Harvester Company—armored utility vehicles.

Pacific Car and Foundry Company—155-mm. gun motor carriage.

From the long range point of view, the Korean situation has not materially affected military requirements. However, it has caused a definite acceleration and forward-phasing of plans to meet requirements in a much shorter period than originally planned. As a result, the increased production orders and contracts are now being filled.

Gen. Almond Decorated

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has bestowed upon Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond a second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star Medal for "conspicuous gallantry, aggressiveness and leadership in the initial operations of the X Corps invasion at Inchon."

The citation read, in part:

"Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, as Commanding General of X Corps, was charged with the execution of operation 'Chromite' which involved the seizure initially of Inchon. By personal example and fearless leadership he visited front line units encouraging them to seize assigned objectives with the minimum of delay.

"His keen tactical judgment, initiative and devotion to duty in coordinating all tactical elements ashore during the initial phases of the operation have materially contributed to the success of our arms."

Gen. Anderson Assigned

The Air Force announced yesterday the reassignment of Maj. Gen. O. A. Anderson from duty as commandant of the Air War College, Maxwell AFB, Ala., to command the 3750th Technical Training Wing at Sheppard AFB, Tex. He will succeed Brig. Gen. Emil C. Keil. General Anderson was relieved 1 Sept. of his Air War College post pending an investigation of remarks made in a newspaper interview late in August.

Urges Religious Support

The President this week received from Frank L. Weil, chairman of the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces, a statement calling upon religious groups throughout the country to continue and increase their support for members of the Armed Forces. The statement was endorsed by Bishop John S. Stamm, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Francis Cardinal Spellman, military vicar of the Military Ordinariate; and Rabbi Bernard J. Bamberger, president of the Synagogue Council of America.

The statement pointed out that religion's responsibility "for the spiritual welfare of this generation of youth is inextricably tied to its responsibility for maintaining and extending religion as one of the major forces in history and in contemporary life."

Those attending the ceremony at which Mr. Weil presented the statement to the President were Bishop Charles W. Flint, president of the General Commission on Chaplains, representing Bishop Stamm; Bishop William R. Arnold, military delegate to the Armed Forces, representing Cardinal Spellman; and Rabbi Bamberger.

The statement follows:

"This is a time of unparalleled struggle for the minds and souls of men. On one side are the dark forces of the spiritually barren ideologies which attack the religious and ethical foundations of our society. On the other are the cherished spiritual concepts and religious values which give our society the moral force without which it would soon disintegrate.

"The key to ultimate victory in this struggle lies in the spirit, in the soul, and in the minds of the present generation of American youth. In order to help insure to us the opportunity to raise our youth in the tradition of our forefathers, we have created an armed force of unprecedented size and now are expanding it greatly. We had asked more than a million and a half of our men and women to serve in that force—a large portion of which are young men under 21 years of age. Yet, if the men and women of this armed force are truly to defend our heritage and transmit it to the generations that follow, their spiritual welfare and their well-being must continue to be a constant concern to all of us while they are in the armed forces and away from the influences of their home, church and family. For they will defend and transmit only that which they come to know, appreciate and cherish.

"Thus, as we organize in defense of our spiritual and cultural heritage as a Nation, we must also organize in support of the religious and welfare needs of these stalwart defenders—the members of our armed forces. In such a day, organized religion faces a clear challenge. Its responsibility for the spiritual welfare of this generation of youth in inextricably tied to its responsibility for maintaining and extending religion as one of the major forces in history and in contemporary life.

"Our religion and our democracy are so strong that they can never be conquered by direct and open attack. They can only succumb to the dry rot of neglect and indifference. Here is a mission for every church and synagogue in our land. Here is a challenge—to provide opportunities to the personnel of our armed forces for religious expression, inner security, and fulfillment and for welcome hospitality comparable to those that are available to men and women out of uniform in their home communities.
